

Meridian Institute aims to unite acupuncture and medicine

By TAMARA GRIPPI

FOR SOMEONE who has always looked at acupuncture as some kind of mysterious needle treatment that should be viewed from a safe distance, I was amazed to find myself lying on a table at the Meridian Institute in Monterey watching needles inch toward my feet, hands and head.

I was even more surprised when I only felt the faintest of sensations from those ultra-tiny needles. And after 20 minutes of listening to soothing background music, I had to admit that I was felt more peaceful than I had in months.

As I drove back to the office, I was more in the mood for contemplating the meaning of life than working on news stories.

Mine isn't the only opinion about acupuncture that has changed in recent years. The ancient treatment has gained wider acceptance in this country, including a recent endorsement from the National Institutes of Health.

Here on the Peninsula, a group of doctors and practitioners is hoping to make acupuncture more accessible. Founders of the recently opened Meridian Institute (at 99 Pacific St. at Heritage Harbor) want their clinic and college to be a place where traditional eastern and western medicine dovetails.

Bruce Robinson, M.D., a retired vascular and general surgeon and founder of the institute, explained: "(Typically) either you go to a Western doctor or you go to an acupuncturist. I thought, why not go to both and get treated really well?"

East meets West

At the institute, students earning their master of science degree in traditional Chinese medicine will take courses in anatomy and physiology, in addition to Eastern medicine classes about herb treatments and energy systems of the body.

While clinics in China have been com-

Auto tragedy, illness strike Concours d'Elegance leaders

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE LEADERSHIP of the Concours d'Elegance has been thrown into disarray, now that both the long-time chairmen of the Pebble Beach charity auto event have been struck down.

Jules Heumann (known as "J") is hospitalized in Semur, France, with multiple injuries after a car crash Sept. 12 that killed his wife Sally, and Lorin Tryon is severely weakened after quadruple bypass surgery, according to long-time friend and Concours announcer Paul Woudenberg.

"These are the two guys who make this show go," said Woudenberg. "The Concours has been so dependent on their gifts, their contacts, their vision. I'm very concerned about the future."

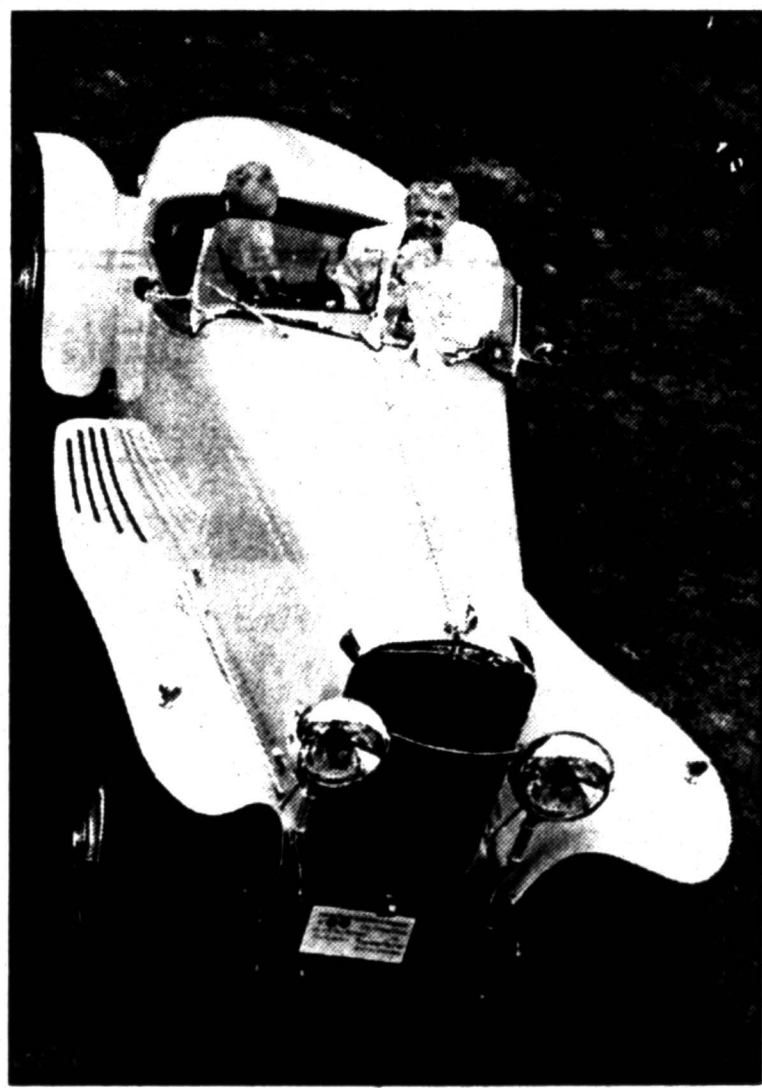

Heumann and Tryon have co-chaired the Concours for almost three decades.

Auto rally tragedy

According to Sandra Kasky, executive director of the Concours who spoke to Heumann from his hospital bed, the accident happened during an auto rally from Paris to Monte Carlo. Heumann had moved to the right to let another car pass and the right front wheel of his car caught the curb, causing the 1930 Hispano-Suiza convertible to flip. J., 74, was thrown clear but Sally, in her 70s, was trapped in the car as it rolled. J. is suffering from a broken clavicle, a concussion and a serious hand injury which will require more surgery, but he is expected to recover.

'Hunter' with crossbow prowls golf courses, shoots five tame deer

By PAUL MILLER

STATE GAME officials have identified a suspect in the crossbow shootings of at least five deer in Pebble Beach and Pacific Grove in the last week.

California game warden John Laughlin said a search of the man's home Sept. 17 produced evidence that he had killed at least two deer. Officials believe he also shot at least three more.

The first two deer wounded by arrows fired from a crossbow were spotted Sept. 12 at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club. State game warden John Dunn had to euthanize the two badly injured deer.

Another wounded deer — with an arrow grotesquely protruding from its back — was saved Tuesday in Pacific Grove after a

And the severed head of a fourth deer was found Wednesday morning on the Pacific Grove golf course.

Carmel farm girls live the olden days

By KIRSTIE WILDE

LAUREL WHISLER'S sheep isn't as dumb as she looks. Sure, Missy the 4-year-old Suffolk is stubborn and thick-headed like most sheep. But she munches grass on a gentle hillside overlooking Monterey Beach, with a million-dollar ocean view that many two-legged creatures work like dogs to afford. So who's the dumb animal?

Missy has figured out how to live the life of Carmel in the olden days, along with six horses, two dogs, a couple of chickens, pigs, ponies and Marty the Galvae steer.

And luckiest of all are 16-year old Laurel, 19-year old Lindsey and 12-year old Tana Whisler, whose great-great-grandfather, A.M. Allan, bought Point Lobos and more than 1,000 surrounding acres in 1897. Five generations later, the Whisler girls find themselves among the very last to live a true country life ... in Carmel.

The girls have raised and shown their prize livestock at both the Santa Cruz and Monterey County fairs for years. Both Tana and Lindsey took home the Reserve Grand Champion ribbons

Investigators compare suspects in murder, kidnapping

By TAMARA GRIPPI

A YEAR after 18-year-old Kristopher Olinger was found murdered on the beach in Pacific Grove, his family is announcing a $13,000 reward in the hopes of apprehending his killers.

Olinger's mother, Shell Phillips, raised the money herself by going door to door at homes and businesses asking for donations. Phillips said she had been disheartened that the interest in Kris' murder had died out. "I'm still so upset I can't work, but I have to do something so people don't forget about Kris," she said.

While no arrests have been made, the Pacific Grove Police Department reports that there are "remarkable similarities" between the composite sketches of two men suspected of kidnapping Christina Williams June 12, and two suspects in the Olinger murder.

Two Hispanic men seen near the area where Olinger was found stabbed to death roughly match the descriptions of the men seen in the area where 13-year-old Christina Williams disappeared from Fort Ord.

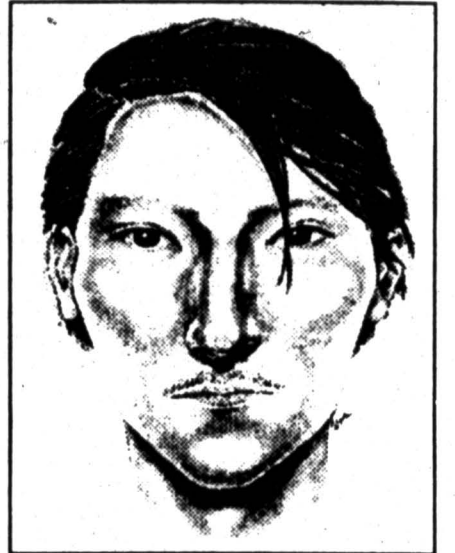

In the Olinger case, one man is described as about 5'7" tall, weighing 180 pounds with rounded face and brown buzz-cut hair. The other man is described as about 5'5" and "very skinny." Neither suspect had facial hair.

In the Williams case, descriptions of the two suspects are similar. However, that's where the similarities end, said Lt. Bill Kennedy of the P.G. Police. The car in Olinger's murder was described as a dark colored 1970s Pontiac Trans Am, compared to the silver four-door Ford Granada described in the Williams case.

Olinger's Ricoh camera, Seiko watch and 14 karat gold ring were stolen along with his 1986 silver Honda Accord. The car was later found in San Jose, where fingerprints were able to identify 40 latent prints, several of which may have been left by the killers.

High surf capsizes fishing boat, kills two in Pacific Grove

By PAUL MILLER

MORE THAN seven people drowned in separate incidents around Northern California beaches over the weekend of Sept. 12, including two Santa Cruz County men whose boat overturned off Asilomar Beach in Pacific Grove Sunday morning.

The men, identified as Rickie Von Carnap, 44, and John Fong, 53, put their 19-foot outboard boat into the water at the ramp adjacent to the Coast Guard pier in Monterey about 6:15 a.m., said Pacific Grove police officer Dan Wishart.

By 10:30 their boat had capsized and both men were dead.

"They went into the water and that's where the story ends," Wishart said. There was no sign of damage to the boat, nor any indication that the men had consumed alcohol, he said.

The surf was high and the boat may have simply overturned after being struck by a wave, according to eyewitnesses.

A woman who was enjoying the sunny weather spotted debris washing ashore and called 911 about 10 o'clock. "Then I spotted the boat upside down and I knew something was terribly wrong," she said.

More than 30 rescue workers converged on the scene, including police officers, firefighters and members of the Pacific Grove ocean rescue squad.

One of the first officers on the scene, Darrin Smolinski, spotted a man floating face down just offshore. He pulled the man to the beach where efforts to resuscitate him were unsuccessful.

A Coast Guard cutter spotted another man in the water about 50 yards offshore but could not approach him because of the rocks nearby.

Rescuers on surfboards reached him a few minutes later and brought him to the beach where he too was pronounced dead.

Neither man was wearing a life vest.

Olinger's parents hope that the sketches in both cases will provide some breakthrough.

"We just want to let the killers know about our resolve," said Olinger's father, Buck Phillips, who is the manager of Carmel's Forge-in-the-Forest restaurant. "We're never going to give this up. Time is on our side. Every day that goes by is one day closer to catching them."

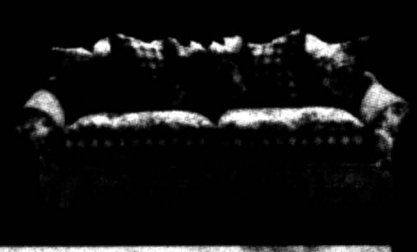

Phillips says capturing the suspects is important to the whole community, to protect the safety of all the children.

The Phillips are encouraging people to wear white arm bands in Kris' honor on Sept. 19, the one-year anniversary of his death. The bands will be available at Monterey Police Station and Monterey High School.

Shell Phillips will spend that day at Kris' memorial bench at Asilomar Beach. Those who would like to drop by flowers or notes in Kris' memory would be welcome, she said.

Anyone with information about Kris Olinger's murder (or the Williams case) can contact P.G. Police at 648-3143.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Man frightened by knuckle-cracking teenager

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department last week.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 6

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of someone hammering at 6:44 a.m. on Lobos between 1st and 2nd. Area check made — no merit to the incident.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Verbal argument between two residents of San Antonio near 6th over potted plants in the front yard.

Advised to handle the problem through their lawyers.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Shop on Junipero reports someone stole a Beanie Baby out of its display box from a shelf in the store. Owner said the possible suspect is a regular customer who buy Beanie Babies and was in the store hanging around for 20 minutes in the area where the theft occurred. The stolen Beanie Baby is valued at $94.50 and is a multi-colored fish named "Coral."

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CHOMP called to report life-line alarm activation at home on Lincoln. Officer found a woman inside with a cut leg. Transported to CHOMP by her son.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two illegal beach fires (north of 10th) extinguished at 9:20 p.m. Persons at all other fires advised of 10 p.m. "fires out" rules.

Carmel Valley: Tierra Grande resident reported a domestic problem with his daughter's boyfriend concerning repairs needed on the car he loaned him.

Carmel Valley: Tierra Grande resident reported her daughter's boyfriend's mother came by her house and told her that her daughter was misguiding her son, concerning drugs and virtue. Reporting party wanted the incident noted.

Carmel Valley: Fern Court resident reported her sister-in-law, while giving a party at her house, became intoxicated and battered her husband. When family members tried to control her actions, she bit two of them on their arms, and punched her 8-year-old son on the leg. Subject was arrested and booked into Monterey County Jail for spousal and child abuse charges.

Pebble Beach: An AAA tow truck driver reported seeing blood on a vehicle and on the front door of a Larkin Road residence. Subject was contacted and said she had been scratched by her dog, but she was O.K.

Pebble Beach: Individual reported that four men pulled over in front of her while she was walking near Midwood and Don Lane. They all got out and stood by the back of their car. She thought they might have tried to abduct her if she didn't have her dog.

Carmel Valley: River Road resident reported his girlfriend was evicted from her residence by her landlord and was concerned that her landlord was going to throw out her personal property. Contacted the landlord who said her ex-tenant had three days to pick up her property. They were all in agreement.

Carmel Valley: Individual requested a welfare check of her sister on De Los Helechos after she received a phone call that her sister was in the hospital. The sister was contacted and told to call the reporting party.

Pebble Beach: El Bosque resident reported her 91-year-old husband hit her in both hands with his walking cane.

Big Sur: A Ford van with expired registration was parked near Deetjen's. Vehicle stored.

LABOR DAY

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Pedestrian on Carpenter appeared lost. Officer contacted and ran a records check. Man said he was looking for the beach. Check came back clear and pedestrian walked away.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Visitors reported that while they were on Carmel Beach someone stole a black athletic bag containing a towel, car keys and a black wallet with $60 cash and miscellaneous credit cards. No suspect information.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Cat

the car, described as a "Boat-tail Speedster," to France after showing it in the August 16 Concours. The gleaming stretch Speedster was chosen for the Parade of Elegance, which made Heumann especially proud because he had personally built the body from scratch, with the help of Strother MacMinn, a chief honorary judge at the event for many years who died only last year.

"It was Sally and J.'s dream to drive in the French rally together," said Kasky. "They had just celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last December and did everything together. They were still very much in love."

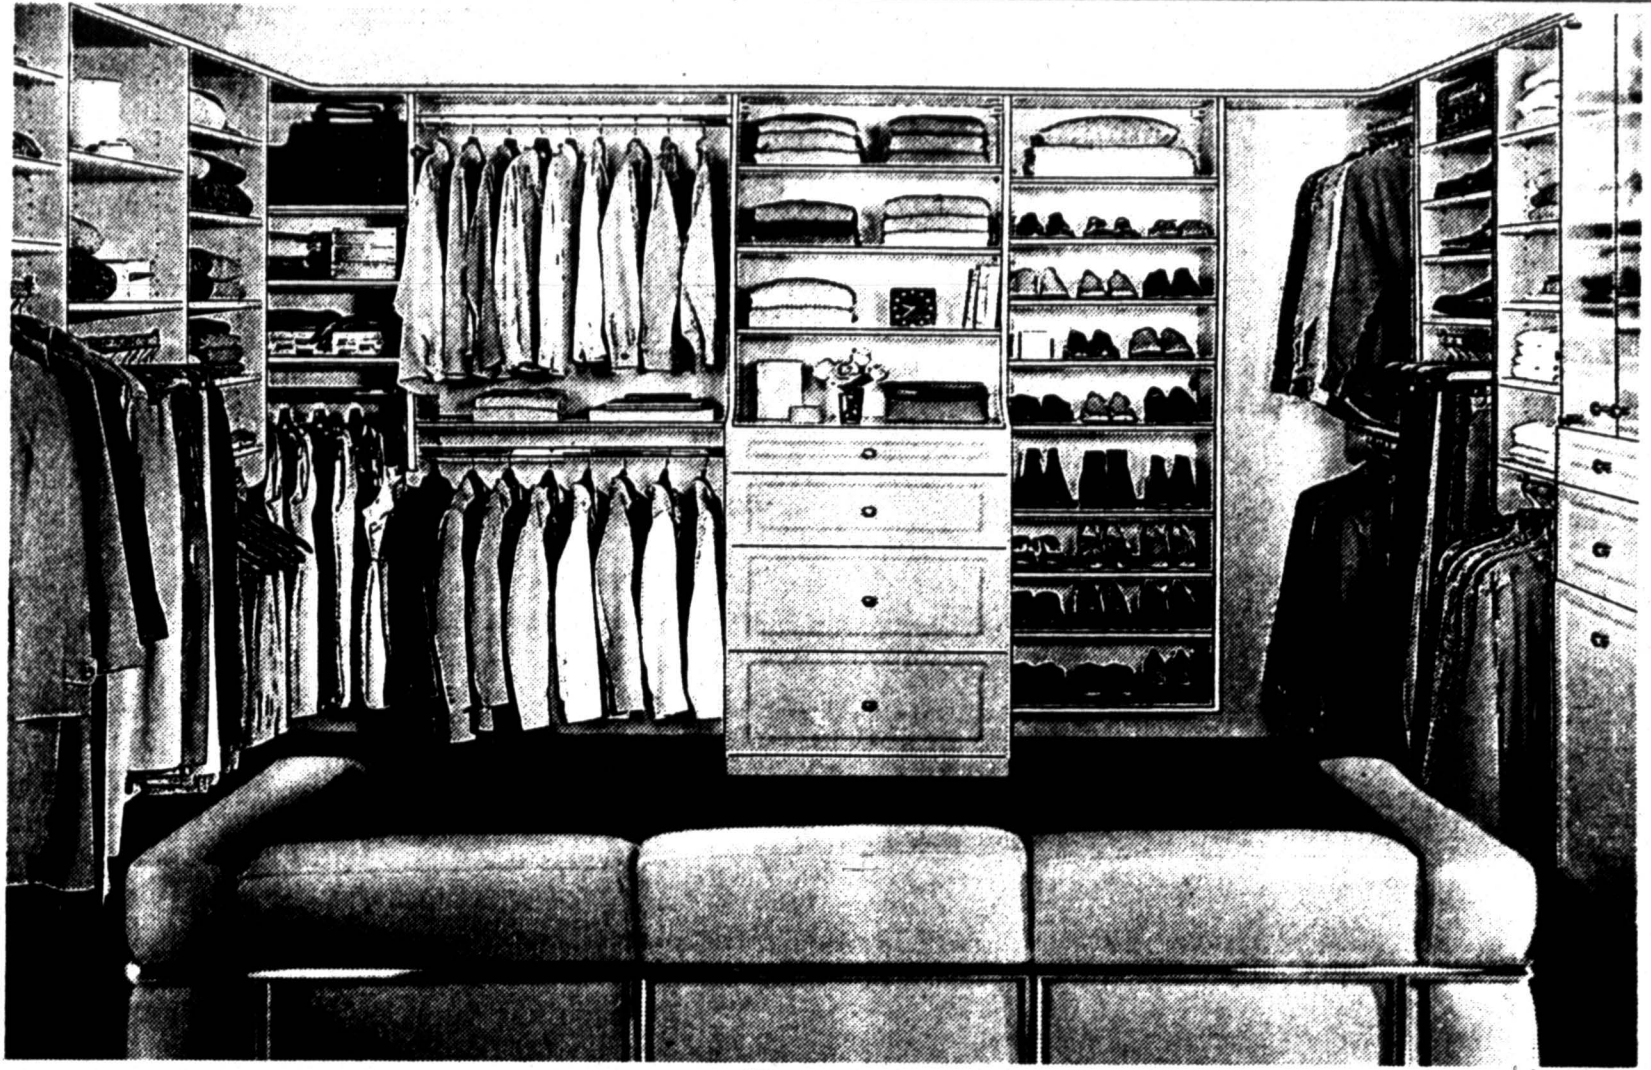

Woudenberg said Sally loved cars just as much as her husband did. "They were together always in this car game. It was a real partnership. She was an absolutely charming woman, very gracious, happy and cheerful," he said. "For J. to lose her is an enormous tragedy."

A memorial service for Sally Heumann is planned for 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 25 at the San Francisco Arboretum in Golden Gate Park, according to Kasky.

After hitting the wounded animal with two tranquilizer darts, California game warden John Laughlin grabs its hind legs.

Officials believe these deer — all bucks with stately antlers — were shot by the suspect, whose identity has not been released.

"One of the deer we found at the country club had an arrow right through the neck and the other was crippled with an arrow in the back leg," Dunn said. He dispatched each deer with a single shot from his pistol after determining that there was no way to save them.

Game warden John Dunn and P.G. animal control officer Elizabeth Conti-Yeo bring the animal to the ground.

P.G. Police Chief Scott Miller bitterly condemned the person responsible for shooting the deer, which are a ubiquitous and peaceful sight around Pacific Grove.

"I don't know if I would classify such a person as a hunter — he's more of a vile human being," Miller said. "Pacific Grove serves almost as a wildlife preserve and we don't think kindly of someone who would slaughter our animals," he said.

Tuesday morning, children on their way to school spotted the deer with an arrow in its back standing just off Lighthouse Avenue.

After arriving on the scene, Laughlin decided that the animal wasn't badly hurt and could be saved if the arrow — which Laughlin said was definitely from a crossbow — were removed.

"We'll tranquilize him, pull out the arrow, treat the wound and hope for the best," he said.

SPCA officials brought an air-powered dart rifle and a case full of powerful drugs to the scene, and the effort to rescue the deer began.

It wasn't easy. Laughlin's first shot hit the animal in its right side. Obviously frightened, the buck bounded up and ran away — with officers following at a safe distance, trying to keep it in sight.

After 10 minutes, the animal began to droop its head and twice fell to the ground because of the drugs in its system.

But each time the deer jumped up as soon as rescuers approached.

Over a period of an hour, four more drug-laden darts were fired at the wary deer before another one finally penetrated its skin. Even then, the deer did not stay down.

"The adrenalin is keeping him going," SPCA wildlife expert Libby Osnes-Erie observed.

Finally, Laughlin was able to grab the disoriented deer's hind legs. Laughlin, Dunn and animal control officer Elizabeth Conti-Yeo wrestled it to the ground.

The arrow fell from the deer's back as it struggled. After a blanket was thrown over the animal's head to calm it down, its wound was treated and two shots were administered — one to prevent infection and the other to reverse the effects of the tranquilizers.

The deer briefly stood, but then went back down and stayed there.

At first, officials were concerned that it might die. But after a few minutes, the prognosis was good. "He's on his sternum and that's a good sign," Osnes-Erie said. "He probably just wants to sleep for awhile."

By the next day, the buck was back up and foraging just like nothing had happened.

"When the call came in about the deer's head the very next morning, I thought 'Oh my God, the one we treated couldn't run away and was killed,'" Conti-Yeo said. But she later saw the rescued animal in good health.

The arrow removed from the wounded deer was the same type found in the two wounded deer in Pebble Beach Sept. 12. All three arrows were examined for fingerprints by investigating officers.

The individual believed responsible for shooting the deer was described as a "game slob" by Laughlin, who is continuing his investigation.

"My job is to put a guy like this — who is just a greedy poacher — behind bars," he said.

Laughlin with the arrow which was removed from the deer's back. The arrow — unmistakably from a crossbow — helped lead officers to a suspect.

Rescue at Carmel Mission sends rescuer to the hospital

By TAMARA GRIPPI

A CARMEL police officer who responded to cries of "help" from a woman in the courtyard of the Carmel Mission ended up in the hospital after climbing over the adobe wall to help her.

The woman was calling for help because she was locked in the courtyard and couldn't open the gate. Two neighbors called 911 when they heard the woman's cries Sept. 15 at 5:42 p.m.

Carmel Police officer Dirk Stoddard found the woman, but when he climbed over the wall to reach her, he fell, severely injuring his right knee. Another police officer who climbed into the courtyard from a different stretch of wall was able to open the gate for the woman and let the paramedics in to help Stoddard. He was sent to Community Hospital for X-rays, according to Police Chief Don Fuselier.

Doctors haven't determined the extent of Stoddard's injury. He will be off duty for a while, Fuselier said.

And no one is sure how the woman got stuck in the courtyard in the first place.

binning the two branches of medicine for some time, the Meridian Institute will be a breakthrough of sorts in the United States, said its vice president, Michelle Brown, M.D., surgeon and former emergency room physician.

Meridian's faculty made two trips to China in the past year to watch first-hand how the two schools of medicine can be integrated. In the future, video-conferencing over the Internet will allow acupuncturists in China to weigh in their opinions as patients are examined here in Monterey.

Help for the common cold

The inaugural class of 24 students began the 3,000-hour degree program September 1. The students are already college graduates "from all different walks of life," Robinson said, and include chiropractors and physicians assistants.

At Meridian's clinic, patients will be assessed by both M.D.s and acupuncturists. "They'd meet together and put together a treatment plan," Robinson said. "We believe chances for a cure are very great with that combination."

Many patients come to the acupuncture clinic with problems that aren't easily treated by Western medicine — the common cold, chronic pain, indigestion and arthritis.

"Western doctors say 'it's in your head,'" Robinson said. "In Chinese medicine they can treat and cure these things specifically."

David Fuess, one of the licensed acupuncturists teaching at the institute, explained that acupuncture's success depends on "incredibly good diagnosis."

As Fuess began my treatment, he took my pulse repeatedly on both wrists in order to assess the state of my various organs. Fuess asked me about the health of my lungs. Interestingly, his question hit upon probably the weakest aspect of my health: during the winter I'm usually sick for a few weeks with bronchitis and a cough.

The treatment for my lungs was a little different than what I expected. Fuess explained that to strengthen the stream of energy traveling to my lungs, he would access a point on my wrist to unblock the flow of energy.

Fuess then explained how points in on my arms, legs and head could unblock other vital energy pathways. For instance, putting a needle in the crease of the forearm helps bring oxygen to the brain and relaxes internal organs, Fuess said.

I was barely aware of the hair-thin needles going into my skin. Then slowly I could feel my body relax, while at the same time I became much more aware of my wrist, knee, foot — all the places where the needles were.

The foundation of Chinese medicine is based on the "Chi" or the life-force of a person, he said. The most common way people feel this energy is when a shiver runs through their body.

Because the institute has a broader approach toward healing, its founders say it will offer hope to elderly patients who have been struggling with chronic pain.

"When an elderly man with a knee problem comes to a doctor for help, the doctor examines him and says, 'Of course your knee is hurt. You're 90.' I say, 'lie down and let's take a look at it,'" Fuess said.

And as Fuess points out, sometimes the answers to long-term health problems are simple. People need to keep their body in balance, he said. "The body gets out of balance by excesses: Too much emotion. Too much food. Too much heat. Too much cold. The human body is literally an ecosystem of the finest proportions. If you have an excess of something, it throws the whole system off."

Acupuncture as a treatment includes more than the simple "needling" technique. Herbs, massage and "moxabustion" — a technique of warming the skin with a burning herb stick held an inch and a half away — are all approaches to healing.

"If an elderly person is consuming a lot of Aspartame (artificial sweetener), that might be the source of a problem," Fuess explained. "They may not need acupuncture at all, but a healthier diet."

Meridian's founders hope that their institute will become a center of healing for all people. The school and clinic are located at Heritage Harbor, which served as the site for the Essalen people's temple for hundreds of years, according to Robinson.

The current head of the Essalen Indian nation, Little Bear, came to tour the new school just before it opened, encouraging both teachers and healers with his response.

"He was inspired to say, 'it will become a great healing center if we treat all people,'" Robinson said.

Carmel couple dances way through 65 years of marriage

By TAMARA GRIPPI

WHEN RUTH and Gage Chrysler first got married 65 years ago, their goal was to travel the world, dance and play bridge. The young couple's dreams might have been dampened by the Depression. After all, they were living on only $115 a month.

But the Chryslers somehow managed to live out their dreams in their own charming way. They'd save up $5 so they could splurge and buy a bottle of sparkling Burgundy at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles and dance all evening.

They remember dancing to Bing Crosby's voice at the Coconut Grove in the Ambassador Hotel. And they didn't have to wait too long after their marriage in 1933, before they loaded up their Model A Ford and took their first cross-country trip to Canada.

With that first adventure, the Chryslers began a lifetime of travels including trips to every state in the U.S., not to mention journeys to Europe, New Zealand, Japan and South America. At their Carmel home, the couple boasts a map of the world with hundreds of pins marking all the far-off places they've visited.

And on every trip, Mrs. Chrysler wrote detailed journals, so they "could take another trip by reading them."

Gage and Ruth Chrysler retired from their respective careers in aircraft equipment sales and public relations in 1963 and settled in Carmel.

"It didn't take us too long to realize we were too young for retirement, so we bought the Donut Den on Mission and Sixth," Mrs. Chrysler said.

For the next 14 years the Donut Den was a favorite spot for locals. "It was the headquarters for the Carmel Fire Department and Police Department," Mr. Chrysler explained, with a twinkle in his eye.

But after a while, the couple decided they wanted a change of pace from waking up every day at 4 a.m. to bake the donuts. And traveling seemed like a much more attractive full-time job.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Chrysler admit that they're amazed to be celebrating their 65th anniversary. "We never thought we'd make our 50th," Mrs. Chrysler laughs.

And with three children and more than

Hacienda Carmel replaces dead alarms, installs back-up system

By TAMARA GRIPPI

LICENSED FIRE inspectors who tested the alarm systems at Hacienda Carmel Sept. 10, at the request of the Cypress Fire Protection district, found that 10 percent of the smoke detectors weren't working, according to Fire Marshal Greg Furey.

Hacienda's management has since replaced those malfunctioning alarms with battery-operated smoke detectors on a temporary basis. And Hacienda General Manager George Piercy said he would be installing back-up smoke alarms in all 300 units over the next week.

Furey said that so far the management has complied "100 percent" with recommendations he made in an August 25 letter. After receiving a complaint from a resident last month, Furey inspected the retirement community's alarm systems and reported that he had "grave concerns about the safety of the residents" because at least part of the system was not working.

Furey sent Piercy a 30-day warning to either fully restore the existing alarm system or provide another. Piercy has since met with private fire alarm consultant Art Black, who recommended a whole new alarm system for Hacienda Carmel.

Black, the former fire marshal for Carmel, advised:

■ smoke detectors which would send a local alarm and notify Hacienda security, but which wouldn't sound throughout the entire complex. Black explained that if the smoke alarms go off too frequently from minor mishaps such as burnt toast, residents may stop paying attention to the alarms.

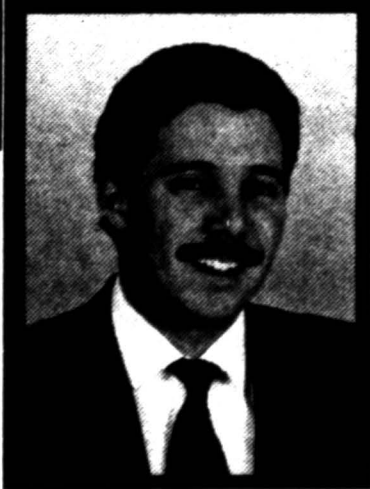

■ heat detectors which would ring throughout the adjacent buildings.

■ alarms that flash in the form of strobe lights in half of the complexes to alert residents who may have difficulty hearing.

Piercy asked three licensed fire protection firms to provide cost estimates based on Black's suggestions. Ultimately, Piercy said, Hacienda's board will make the final decision about what type of fire alarm system to install.

In the meantime, Piercy said the back-up smoke alarms will provide additional protection for residents.

Coffee Break

By BEVERLY BORGMAN

WANT LURID AND SALACIOUS? READ ON

LAST SATURDAY dawned sunny and beautiful, and as I looked across the breakfast table to comment on it, I realized the Significant Other had not spoken for at least 15 minutes. He hadn't even asked me to help him with the jumble puzzle.

Then I realized he was deep into the special 6-page newspaper section about Clinton and Monica, the Starr Report. "Hey," I called, "think of it as a book. You can come back to it tonight and read it by the fire," adding needlessly, "Tony Hillerman and Tom Clancy, eat your hearts out!"

I, on the other hand, quickly finished the obits and Ann Landers, and was ready to take a walk on this gorgeous morning. Politics and presidential stupidity aside, all the words I'd heard on TV the night before such as "lurid" and "salacious" really amounted to only one thing: that two people had had sex.

All the people jumping up and down about the "graphic details" probably had had much the same thing this week or last. Quite possibly, the biggest jumpers were those who hadn't.

Sex, as you may have noticed, is a pretty universal activity, and not the most graceful act that human beings can perform. While its popularity seems not to have waned, the English language has spawned a number of unflattering words to describe it — lewd, lascivious, obscene, carnal — all useful when it's the OTHER guy caught doing it.

Poor Bill

"Poor Bill," thought I as I waved goodbye to the S.O., still buried in the sordid (ah, another useful word) details.

The sun had warmed every flower in the garden, impatiens dazzled the eye, orange nasturtiums climbed before my eyes, and the fortnight lilies — those marvelous clock-watchers of nature — threatened to burst their buds a week ahead of schedule. I fairly danced down Guadalupe Street.

However, two blocks into Carmel's city limits I found myself in fog. At Vista del Lobos park-slash-parking lot the very "vista" of Point Lobos the name promises was totally obscured. (Ironically, the city's well-meaning plantings of pines and high-growing shrubbery are doing the very same thing, much to the neighbors' distress, I imagine.)

Zippering up my windbreaker, I continued down Junipero. At the Chevron station Dale, my mechanic, waved hello, calling me by name. I ask you: Is there anything sweeter than the phrase "MY mechanic," actually KNOWING the guy who works on your car? Dale has seen me through a dozen years of repairs, and who knows, maybe I've been the cause of the gray hairs he's acquired in that time.

I arrived at Carmel Valley Coffee Roasting, helped myself to the aptly named "Foglifter" coffee pot, dropped my money into a basket, but before I was out the door, I heard a man on his cellular:

"I'm in a coffee shop . . . yeah, my new phone is cutting-edge," he told his friend. Then WHY, I wondered, does his voice have to BOOM through the whole store?

Dashing across Ocean Avenue, I took up my usual station on the wooden bench in front of the library, then watched as a huge RV from Washington state maneuvered into TWO of the 30-minute parking places. With hand signals from his wife standing on the sidewalk, the driver ended up a good four inches from a stately Monterey pine.

Compulsively helpful, I told her there was free all-day parking up the hill. Nodding toward her husband, she said, "He wants to keep moving." Turns out she used to live on the Monterey Peninsula years ago, even raised her kids here, and she wanted to have a nostalgic look around Carmel. Hubby had considerably given her 30 minutes to do so.

Meanwhile, he climbed back into the RV with a newspaper to read, and she set off alone. The perfect Carmel vacation.

City committee begins study of paid parking

By TAMARA GRIPPI

THE PARKING 2000 committee — a city group that has been inactive for the last couple of years — is meeting once again to brainstorm ways to improve parking in town and raise money for the city's pressing needs.

"They're resurrecting issues yet to be settled, to review in today's climate," said Assistant City Administrator Greg D'Ambrosio, staff advisor to the group.

The committee, which held its inaugural meeting Sept. 17, will examine various options for paid parking, including meters, a "pay and display" system or vouchers.

Paid parking could potentially be used as a funding source for various city projects including the Sunset Center renovation, marketing programs and substantial capital improvements, according to D'Ambrosio.

At the committee's meeting, members discussed strategies to encourage local business employees to park in the city's lots and not on the street.

Members of the committee include: Carmel Mayor Ken

White (chairman), Csaba Ajan, Philip Geiger, Pope Coleman, Allan Paterson, Linda Anderson, Melanie Billig, former city councilman Bob Fischer and current city councilwoman Sue McCloud.

City offers crosswalk to ease child-safety worries

By KIRSTIE WILDE

CARMEL CITY officials still reject as illegal the "Drive Slow — Children at Play" signs on private property at the corner of Carmelo and Santa Lucia, but they are offering to paint crosswalks at the intersection to help protect the kids.

On Sept. 14, the Carmel Traffic Committee voted unanimously to add four crosswalks at the four-way stop, which is used by many River School students. The intersection is also on the city bus route and gets heavy beach traffic, which prompted resident Jennifer Field to put up her own yellow warning signs months ago.

Field, a mother of three, was ordered by the code enforcement officer to remove her "Children at Play" signs, because they violate the Carmel sign ordinance.

Field wondered about the priorities, pointing out a "Drive Slowly Pets at Play" sign a couple blocks away (above) that has not been removed.

But City Administrator Jere Kersnar told The Pine Cone that neither sign is legal, because they are too much like the traffic signs used by the government.

"You can only post those signs ["Children at Play"] in the appropriate locations, in the public right-of-way," Kersnar said. "You can't have any [private] signs that are like them or are a little bit off."

the very first time they competed. And at the 1998 Monterey County Fair, all three Whislers took home first-place ribbons: Tana and Laurel for their lambs, Laurel also for her steer and Lindsey for her hog and for "swine showmanship."

Lindsey says showing a great pink pig is not that different from runway modeling, believe it or not!

"To show a pig, you have to be really calm, have finesse, be aggressive and look like you are enjoying the whole thing. Your hair must be pulled back, and you have to worry as much about how you look as how the animal does. When you present a lamb, you have to be very showy and feminine. It's all about showmanship and looking your best."

Laurel shared her secret for winning the hearts and minds of the livestock judges: "You have to be in front as much as you can. There's no talking, so you have to make eye contact with the judge. So you stare at him! . . . You want to make sure he sees you and nobody else."

Above all else, you must maintain composure in the ring — which isn't easy when a half-ton cow is standing on your foot or a snow-white lamb (which you just spent an hour shampooing with Woolite to clean the "deep down dirt") has just peed on your hand.

Looking like a beauty queen while muscling a 1,298-pound steer around the ring is a talent not shared with many of Tana's Carmel school friends. And even if they wanted to try, can you imagine the hubbub among the modern-day neighbors of Mission Ranch or Hatton Fields if a local 4H'er tried to raise a couple of hogs next door?

4H profits

Raising prize-winning livestock and selling the animals for meat has netted the three Whisler girls thousands of dollars for their education. Lindsey is at Monterey Peninsula College now, and hopes to transfer to CalPoly to study equine reproduction or some other agricultural field. Laurel is interested in veterinary science. Tana is thinking about studying medicine, too — but of the human variety.

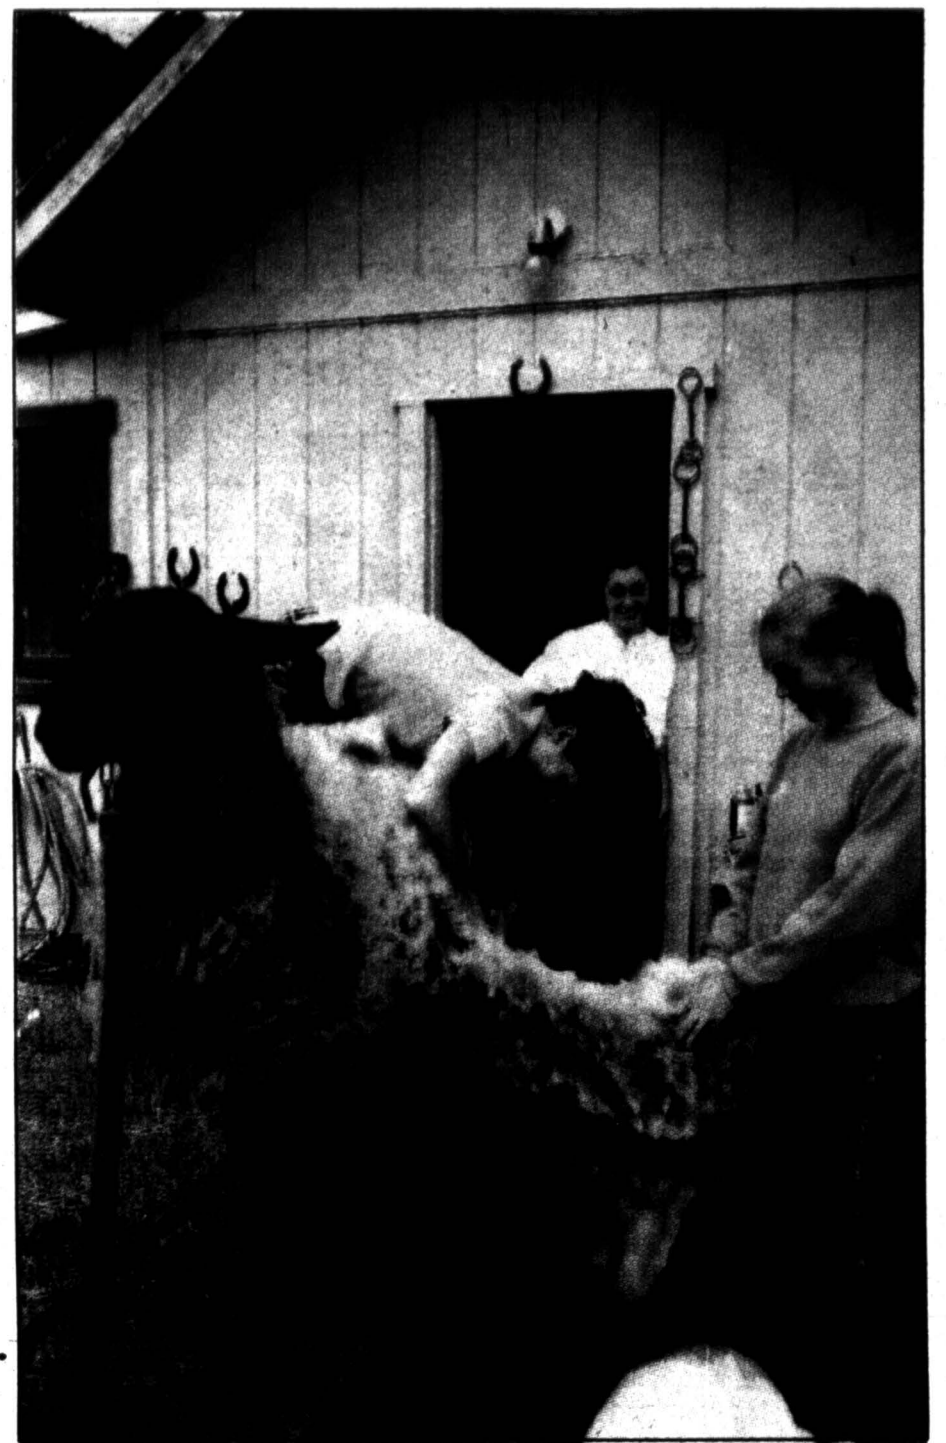

Growing up on a ranch where even the chickens in the chicken coop enjoy an ocean view has been wonderful for the sisters, their cousins and their grandparents — who still live in a lovely house on the hill. After their 4H chores, the youngsters can hop on a horse and ride the trails above their home or gallop the beach below.

Now that the state of California and the Big Sur Land Trust have purchased all but 25 acres of the original Point Lobos ranch, the land remaining may not support a sixth generation of Whislers.

"It would be nice to stay here," says Lindsey. "I can't imagine moving away, or finding any place better."

Laurel Whisler shears her sheep Missy, as Tana gathers the wool and Lindsey explains the hard work necessary to live the Carmel country life at Point Lobos Ranch. "We used to have a man come by who would shear the sheep for $3 apiece," says Lindsey. "Now we have to do it ourselves — and believe me, after you've sheared 13 of these in a row, you're tired, greasy and gross!"

WHEN KATIE BOGARD, 14, goes for a stroll along Scenic Road above Carmel Beach each morning, she goes in a stroller because her arthritis, hip trouble and knee injury make it painful to walk as much as she would like to.

Mom Barbara, who has always enjoyed Katie's company on daily errands around town, decided to help Katie live with her disabilities when the arthritis came on at the beginning of summer. She purchased a lightweight stroller at a church rummage sale to continue Katie's outings, and positioned a step-stool in front of their bay window seat so that Katie can climb up unassisted to glare at passing cats.

When the weather is chilly, Katie wears a coat to the beach; her night attire is a blue and red bomber jacket, or, when it's warmer, an aqua T-shirt with fire hydrant logo. Her puppy cut, administered by Dad Roger, also helps keep her warm.

Although Katie can no longer leap for tennis balls or romp in the soft beach sand — both former passions — she loves visits from her Bay Area sisters, Nancy and Amy, and outings to 91-year-old Grandmother Irma at Carmel Valley Manor — where she also pops in on other residents, bringing joy with her quiet and loving ways. Overnights to Aunt Sue's cottage and flower garden at the manor are also on Katie's list of fun places to go.

All in all, miniature poodle Katie leads a very active life for a senior who still looks like a puppy and whose joie de vivre has not lessened one whit — a lovely example for us all.

CAPP postpones city-owned art show

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

THE FIRST-EVER show of city-owned art has been postponed because the Committee for Art in Public Places (CAPP) doesn't have the money to prepare the long-stored artworks for public viewing.

CAPP found its budget of $7,000 inadequate to properly mount the show. The decision was relayed at a September 16 meeting attended by City Administrator Jere Kersnar and Brian Donoghue, director of Sunset Cultural Center.

"To nickel and dime this [show] is not right. We have a treasure trove here. This will be the very first time a public exhibition of city art will be shown in Carmel," said Miriam Rosenstein, acting interim chair of CAPP.

The exhibit of city-owned art is planned for the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center. Part of the collection is now displayed in various city venues, but a comprehensive public exhibit has never been attempted before.

CAPP's preparation for the show is a multi-faceted job. It involves first inventorying and then cataloging all of the pieces — donated to the city over many decades. Works selected for display may need to be mounted, cleaned and restored. The project also calls for framing, appraising and insuring the works and installing security devices. Printing brochures, mailing pieces and exhibition labels are also planned.

Kersnar advised the committee that it has two options: to request a mid-year budget adjustment by January 1, 1999, or to submit a request for next year's budget by April 1, 1999. Of course, neither option guarantees more funding for the show.

Rosenstein asked whether CAPP can look into securing corporate sponsors.

Kersnar advised that donations may not be solicited, but corporations' logos could appear on the exhibit brochure as advertising. Approval from the City Council must be obtained before CAPP can solicit help from businesses, Donoghue has advised.

Rosenstein said that the eventual show will "put the city in a marvelous light," and highlight the positive work CAPP is doing to rescue the city-owned art collection.

Sacramento and Washington cooperate to protect the sea

HUNDREDS OF Carmelites will gather Saturday to show their love for the Pacific Ocean by cleaning up its edges. As they participate in the annual Coastal Cleanup Day, many will be unaware that parallel efforts to strengthen protection of the ocean are underway in Sacramento and Washington, D.C., and that Carmel-area representatives Fred Keeley and Sam Farr are leading the way.

The Oceans Act of 1997, introduced by Farr last year, was passed by the House on Sept. 15. It goes to a conference committee with the Senate — which has already passed a similar measure — and is sure to be signed into law.

The bill will spearhead a national effort to identify ways that the world's oceans can be rescued from man's unwitting ruination.

"We are critically dependent on the oceans and the resources we derive from them, and we cannot ignore evidence that our oceans are imperiled," Farr says, "and the threats are constantly increasing."

Farr tells how when he was first elected to the California legislature, sea urchins commonly found in coastal waters had no commercial value.

Just twelve years later a sudden market had developed and the animals had to be protected from extinction.

"We need to put our national ocean exploration programs on par with the space program, and our efforts to conserve the marine environment at least equal to that provided to the land portion of our country," he says.

Inside the state's 3-mile limit another new bill will soon take effect — one that was authored by Keeley and passed by the legislature in the session that just ended.

Keeley says the need for his bill, the Marine Life Management Act, is obvious.

"The quality of near-shore coastal waters is declining," he says, "especially adjacent to urbanized areas."

He points to the fact that 70% of California's 32 million people live within one hour of the coast. Residue from many human activities — such as the drops of oil on your driveway or the fertilizer in your garden — eventually makes its way into the sea.

And the populations of some fish are rapidly declining, Keeley says, because "factory ships — the bulldozers of the sea — are operating without enough controls."

Implementing those controls isn't easy, he says, because "the ocean is practically inaccessible."

Some fishing groups, and some commercial fish processing companies, are concerned that over-regulation of the oceans will result. We think their concerns are understandable and should be taken into account as the new bills are put into effect.

But the vitality of the world's oceans is so important that passage of these bills should be celebrated.

Coastal clean-up Dear Editor:

Thank you for your editorial last week regarding the California Coastal Commission's annual statewide volunteer coastal clean-up scheduled this Saturday, Sept. 19, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The volunteer effort will be coordinated by the Carmel Residents Association. (The event is a week earlier and an hour earlier than the Carmel Residents Association's regularly scheduled monthly beach clean-up in order to coordinate the effort with the statewide beach clean-up.) Volunteers should bring gloves to protect their hands, and should meet at the foot of Ocean Avenue. Coffee and pastries donated by Caffe Cardinale and Carmel Bakery will be served.

Volunteers will keep a written record of everything picked up. The statistics are then used by the Coastal Commission to request that the state dedicate more funds for coastal preservation.

The Carmel Residents Association's regular monthly beach clean-ups over the past seven years have generated over 3,500 hours of community service to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. It is always a lot of fun to get together with, and volunteer with other Carmelites to keep our beautiful beach clean.

For more information, volunteers can contact Kay or Harvey Kuffner (626-1951), event coordinators, or myself (625-3203) for more information.

CSUMB Presidents Invitational

WOULDN'T IT be cool if some day the CSUMB golf team was a national powerhouse?

Actually, that is not so far-fetched, according to the plan designed by Development Director Bill Paulson and Coach Andy Gonzalez of CSUMB.

The program will play NAIA this season, before eventually moving up to Division II in 1999. And given the wealth of excellent golf courses on the Monterey Peninsula, it's only a matter of time before a Division I CSUMB Otter Golf Team hosts one of the premier collegiate tournaments on the NCAA schedule. And you can help.

On Monday, October 19, the 3rd Annual Presidents Cup Golf Tournament will be staged at Fort Ord Bayonet Golf Course to generate proceeds for the CSUMB Varsity Men's and Women's Golf Program.

For the $195 per player entry fee, golfers will get a celebrity golf clinic by Roger Maltbie, Johnny Miller and possibly Patty Sheehan, tee prizes, dinner, 18 holes of golf and a chance at a Wide World of Golf Scotland golf vacation or other exciting auction items. Also, a lucky hole-in-one will win a new Honda Accord.

"We are expecting a full field and we're hopeful that the tournament will be a huge success" noted Tournament Chairman Dennis Fox. "And the addition of our celebrity guests will certainly add a touch of class to the event."

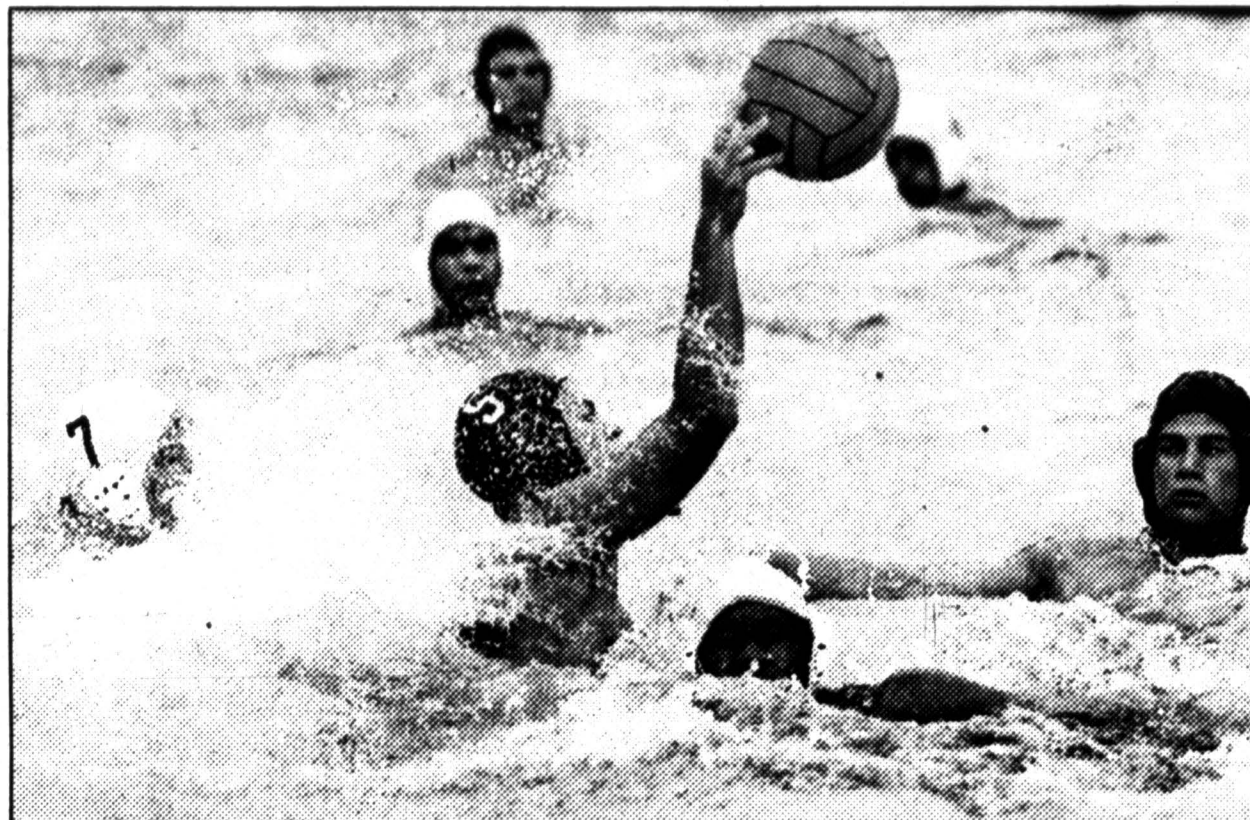

Perhaps best of all, the format is a modified scramble over the newly renovated Bayonet Course, meaning all foursome players will tee off and then play in their own ball from the best tee shot. Not your everyday format!

The Bayonet Course, which was recently renovated by the BSL Management Company under the direction of Head Golf Professional Al Luna, has benefited from extensive tree trimming, new cart paths, new tee boxes and an array of other course improvements.

"The course looks great," concluded Bill Harke, a member of the CSUMB team. "It's certainly in the top five on the Peninsula!"

FROM THE CLUBHOUSE: Golfers interested in playing in the CSUMB Presidents Invitational should call 582-4258 for an entry form. Registration deadline is October 12th. Non-golfers can attend the dinner and auction for $30.

STRONG-ARM MANEUVER

The RLS boys water polo team, aided by the strong arms of Thomas Coleman (5) and Brendan Haley (right), squared its season record to 1-1 Sept. 15 by sinking Watsonville High 18-6 in the Pirate pool. Haley, who scored six goals, led the assault along with Zak Blyweiss (six goals) and Nathan Krissoff (four goals). The Pirates next match will be at the Watsonville Tournament, Sept. 18 and 19.

Sports Wrap-up

ON THE BASELINE: The RLS girls tennis team opened its season Sept. 15 with a convincing 7-0 road win over Seaside, surrendering only one set in four of the singles matches. Lady Pirates Mio Sukishima and sisters Reed and Flynn Templeton all shut out their opponent — 6-0, 6-0 — while fellow Lady Pirate Lia Gilles won her individual match 6-0, 6-1. In doubles action the tandems of Sonya Stokes-Alexa Bieler, Mandy Moran-Katarina Linz and Sarah Smith-Stephanie Smith each won their respective matches.

Show time is 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the theater, located near the end of Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Tickets are $18 general, $16 for students and seniors, $12 for Hartnell students and $10 for children. 375-2111 or 755-6816.

ANTONY & CLEOPATRA

Reviewed on page 38.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18-20, at the Golden Bough Theatre, Monte Verde between 8th and 9th, Carmel.

Tickets are $15 adults, $10 children, seniors, military and teachers and $5 for Monterey Peninsula high school students. 622-0100.

COLLECTED STORIES

Finalist for the 1997 Pulitzer Prize, "Collected Stories" focuses on a complicated six-year relationship between two women - one a successful short story writer, the other her protégée. It is written by Donald Margulies.

Conrad Selvig directs Neva Hahns and Jessamay Howell in this MPC Players production. It plays 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 5 p.m. Sundays through Sept. 27 at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and 4th, Carmel.

Tickets are $12 general, $10 for students and seniors. Reservations: 646-9478.

THE GHOST OF THE OZARKS

A classic melodrama that inspired the John Wayne film, "Shepherd of the Hills," "Ghost of the Ozarks" continues its run at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at the theater, located at Scott and Pacific streets in Monterey. The Troupers of the Gold Coast will present their Olio (or after-show) as well. For reservations, call 375-4916 during office hours: 1 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays, 1 to 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays.

SHIMMER

John Rousseau directs Stephen Moor in John O'Keefe's autobiographical story of Johnny, a middle aged man who reflects on his experiences as a 16-year-old inmate in a Midwestern reform school. "Shimmer" is part of the PRT Solo Series.

This Central Coast premiere will be staged at 2 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19-20, and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

STRANGE ENCOUNTERS

An evening of one-act plays, "Agora" by Cary Pepper and "The Palace," a folk tale from Patagonia, will be presented by Third Studio and the MPC Theatre Co. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 27 in the SRO Theatre at Monterey Peninsula College. Tickets are $5. 646-4213.

TAPPING THE GLASS

The PRT Solo Series continues with "Tapping the Glass," a one-woman show written by and starring Jeanne Wooster. The show focuses on a woman's final college year in Philadelphia, and her life centered around Dirty Frank's Bar. Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 29 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

VIVIEN

Lamont Johnson directs MaryAnn Schaupp-Rousseau as actress Vivien Leigh, who was perhaps best remembered as Scarlett in "Gone with the Wind." This offering of the PRT Solo Series finds Leigh in 1967, the final year of her life, reflecting on her career and treasured relationships from her past, including Laurence Olivier, Peter Finch, Orson Welles and Clark Gable.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

Brimming with special effects, including inline "flying" skating monkeys, the musical continues at the Outdoor Forest Theatre, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

Directed by Walt Defaria, this Pacific Repertory Theatre production takes its cues from the legendary MGM film.

"The Wizard of Oz" will have its final performances at 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday, Sept. 17-20.

Regular admission is $15 for adults, $10 for children and seniors. Student group rates are available. 622-0100.

PacRep's 'Antony and Cleopatra' refines the Bard's plot construction

By PATRICK WHITEHURST

PACIFIC REPERTORY Theatre's cleverly abbreviated interpretation of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" may not appeal to some purists. But this adaptation by Dorian Ellis and Stephen Moorer (Moorer also directs the play) is far more enjoyable than the original, which can, at times, be dreary in the extreme.

The political issues dwelled on for scene after scene between Octavius Caesar and Antony in Shakespeare's play have, thankfully, been abridged in favor of the more titillating, and at times, bawdy, amorous passages. Additionally, the more obscure English words of the 17th century bard have been modernized.

Though sex and adultery have a decided role in the structure of the play, they are approached almost obliquely in this stage presentation, and we are spared further sex-nausea in our lives. Instead, we are treated to Shakespeare's magical poetry. Ellis and Moorer, both intuitively and purposefully, have captured this magic, because the richness of "Antony and Cleopatra" is not so much in its dramatic quality as in its poetry.

Our main characters and lovers, by this time in their lives, are middle-aged, and neither has the excuse of the adolescent lovers, Romeo and Juliet. Indeed, Antony is gray-haired and Cleopatra has had a child years before by Julius Caesar.

MaryAnn Schaupp is stunning as the ardent, contrary and volatile Egyptian queen, Cleopatra. In the play her sole aim is to control Antony and to cast a spell over him. As she captures the heart of Antony, she enthalls the audience with her performance until her unique death and the curtain falls.

Stunning ... MaryAnn Schaupp as the volatile Egyptian queen.

John Farmanesh-Bocca as Antony, compellingly and faithfully portrays the arrogant Triumvir, as a passionate fool who is led around by his nose by Cleopatra, to his defeat and eventual suicide.

Schaupp and Farmanesh-Bocca, besides their lead roles, also choreograph the play, and, through dance, beautifully segue scenes within the two acts of the play. The dance also adds another dimension to the play.

Jessica Williams Trio

Thurs. Sept. 17

A Jazz Store favorite, pianist Jessica Williams will be celebrating the release of Joyful Sorrow, her new CD on the Blackhawk label. Recorded in December 1996 at the Jazz Store, it is a tribute to Bill Evans. Williams is a masterful pianist on her own terms, and can play all styles of piano jazz. Dave Brubeck has called Williams the "best improvising pianist playing today." Don't miss what promises to be a very special evening!

David Friesen & Uwe Kropinski

This duet of brass virtuoso David Friesen and master guitarist Uwe Kropinski has been playing together since they met in 1987. Both Friesen and Kropinski have the ability and imagination to find the new ways of expressing new ideas on their instruments, but always with high regard for musical integrity. Their show at the Jazz Store in 1996 left the audience impressed at their technical mastery of their instruments, and touched by the power and depth of music. They have recorded Departure on Global Pacific records, featuring original compositions by both of them.

Brazilian pianist and composer Weber Iago (formerly Drummond) will be making a live recording during his solo performance at the Jazz Store. His music blends traditional Brazilian rhythms with modern jazz harmonies and a good touch of classicism. His past performances at the Jazz Store have always been filled with exciting technique, interesting selections, and great musicianship. He has performed with Gilberto Gil, Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter, Claudia Villela and many others.

Phil Markowitz Trio

Sat. Oct. 10

Straight-ahead jazz pianist, composer and arranger Phil Markowitz has got his big break in New York in the 1970s, playing with Toots Thielemans, Joe Chambers, and eventually joining Chet Baker's group. He went on to record with the Brecker Brothers, the Mel Lewis Orchestra, the Bob Mintzer Big Band, Dave Liebman and many others. From all his diverse experiences, he has found his own place as a leader of his own trio, and has a current release on Passage Records entitled Taxi Ride.

Heritage tour includes Frank Lloyd Wright Carmel Point house

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

IF YOU'VE always longed to take a peek inside the Frank Lloyd Wright house on Carmel Point, this is your chance to actually go inside, look around and have architect Mark Mills point out features of interest.

On Sunday, September 20, Carmel Heritage is sponsoring a house tour from 1 to 5 p.m. of seven houses, including the Wright house and a garden — all within a one-mile "easy walking" area, according to Susan Draper, coordinator of the tour.

Most of the homes will be open to the public for the first time, and volunteer docents, lead by Barbara Bogard, will be on hand to answer questions.

The homes are located on Scenic Road, Inspiration Avenue, San Antonio Avenue, Valley View Avenue, Carmelo Street and Hilltop Place. Some will feature displays by Carmel shops, and light refreshments will be served at Hilltop House.

A tour map of the homes is printed on tickets which are available only on the day of the tour at two of the houses, according to Chris Sidner; these are 26407 Carmelo Street near 17th and the Wright House on Scenic Road at Martin Way. Tickets are $30, or $25 for Carmel Heritage members.

Proceeds will benefit the Carmel Heritage Society, a non-profit organization committed to preserving Carmel's heritage.

Continuing a Monterey Jazz Festival tradition, bassist Ray Drummond (a former resident of the Monterey Peninsula) will perform a new work commissioned for this year's event. Other special events for this year's festival include a conversation with artist-in-residence Bobby Hutcherson, a conversation with Dave Brubeck, and a "Blindfold" Test conducted by members of the Jazz Journalists Association and presented by Downbeat Magazine.

THE BOOKSHELF

Reception honors Becom's colorful photos, art, books

THE PAINTED CEMETERIES of Latin America and the Days of the Dead are subjects of the colorful — superbly colorful — photographs by Jeffrey Becom of Pacific Grove. They will be shown in the Center for Photographic Art Gallery — Suite #1, Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel — at an opening public reception from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, September 18, with the added feature of a booksigning, as well.

The exhibition of photographs and paintings has the poetic and intriguing title, "So That the Souls May Sing: Paint and the Days of the Dead." Becom's vivid color photographs and oil and wax paintings on wood focus on the cemeteries and tombs of Mexico, Guatemala and El Salvador where graves are lovingly prepared for the most important holiday of the year, the Day of the Dead.

The CPA gallery will be transformed through the use of paint, artifacts, artworks

Ketcham utilizes pen and ink to render portraits of artists

TWENTY-SEVEN pen and ink drawings of famous painters by Hank Ketcham are currently on display in the entry gallery of the Monterey Museum of Art through October 25.

While Ketcham has reached international fame with his creation, Dennis the Menace, he is also a fine artist with a number of gallery shows to his credit.

Of the portraits, Ketcham commented, "Many of the artists lived before photography was invented. I had to rely on their self-portraits," which, he said, were all so diverse. Ketcham enjoys doing pen and ink sketches because, he says, "It's like painting with a pen."

The portraits include pen and ink drawings of Berthe Morisot, Alexander Calder, Chuck Close, Salvador Dali, Edgar Degas,

Artemisia Gentileschi, Grandma Moses, Armin Hansen, Winslow Homer, Wassily Kandinsky, René Magritte, Mary Cassatt, Michelangelo Buonarroti, Amedeo Modigliani, N.C. Wyeth, Georgia O'Keefe, Rembrandt van Rijn, William Ritschel, Norman Rockwell, Donald Teague, Andy

School kids can perform with pros at CPA Festival

THERE WILL be hands-on performing arts opportunities for school-age children in and around Monterey County to appear with guest professional artists in October's Carmel Performing Arts Festival scheduled for October 4 through 25.

Children may perform in "Circus," "Sibling Tribalry," Jim Gamble's Marionette Production, or the Monterey Opera presentation of "Blazing Sopranos." Schools should call Robin McKee, producing artistic director of the festival, at 644-8383 for information.

DALI, FEATHERED PONCHO GROUPED IN COLLECTORS EXHIBIT

ART WORKS by Guy Rose, Salvador Dali and Armin Hansen will be shown in the Coburn Gallery at the Monterey Museum of Art in its Collectors Guild exhibit commencing September 26 at a members' reception. The show will run through November 8.

Items as rare and unusual as a Chinese tea chest and a Pre-Columbian feathered poncho will also be in the exhibit which salutes and celebrates the fine art collections and collectors on the Monterey Peninsula.

The Collectors Guild was established three years ago to bring together experienced, novice and potential art collectors interested in learning more about collections and collection through the shared experience and expertise of scholars, curators, artists, art dealers and collectors.

The museum is located at 559 Pacific Street, Monterey. For information, call 372-5477.

It didn't take much effort for Olivia Newton-John to totally charm Nat Owings Jr. and Frank Wentworth!

Margaret Owings makes her point to another legend, biologist Karl Kenyon, as FSO's Cathy Cole looks on.

Scientists, celebs turn out for Friends of the Sea Otter

I KNOW I'm old. You see, I measure my age by how much I've learned. Case in point: eons ago, I was at New York's Metropolitan Museum covering some gala for the Reader's Digest. I saw someone who looked vaguely familiar, surrounded by a group of people. Not knowing any better, I went straight up to him and asked,

People and Places

By Sissi Maleki

"Excuse me, are you Andy Warhol?" I ended up crawling away, amidst snickers and pitiful looks, shortly after having gotten my very obvious answer. (E.T. couldn't have been more recognizable!)

Fast forward to this past weekend. At an event, I spied a group that included a very familiar-looking woman, so I approached her and did my reporter stuff. BUT — being much older and wiser now, I then discreetly collared one of her entourage, and asked, "May I ask you a stupid question?" "Of course," he replied. "No, I mean really stupid question?" "Sure, no problem," he insisted. "I'm warning you — it's a really dumb question!" He assured me not to worry. "Was that Olivia Newton-John with whom I was speaking?" He very kindly confirmed it. I breathed a sigh of relief, grateful that my advanced age had taught me to carefully select the witness to my clueless brain.

Friends of the Sea Otter honor life achievements of founders

A gala 30th anniversary dinner honoring FSO founders Margaret Wentworth Owings and James Mattison at the aquarium on September 12th was an absolute sell-out. Yes, there was a requisite number of public figures, including Olivia Newton-John (who wants "to be just like Margaret" when she "grows up"), philanthropist Julie Packard, politicians Sam Farr and Fred Keeley, to name just a few.

But the true heroes of the evening were the ones who had dedicated their whole lives to the battle for the environment and the education of the public.

After a standing ovation, Margaret spoke to an audience that included numerous Wentworths and Owings of both her generation and younger. Her poetic soul shone through as she warned of dangerous chemicals killing ocean life and eventually causing sea otters to "fall into the emptiness of extinction." She begged the attentive guests not to regard the ocean "as a cesspool in which to dump our waste."

Given such emotional dedication to the environment, it's not surprising that even Jane Goodall made certain to send a message from Gombe (Africa) — via a videotape that had to be walked out of the tiny country — of her appreciation for Margaret's work, calling her a "real life hero." Karl Kenyon, who was the first to keep the otter in captivity and had the northern sea otter named after him, humorously pointed out, "If Margaret decides something should be saved, it better be saved!"

It was, though, a very moving and emotional evening, reminding all of us that were it not for a handful of doggedly persistent and dedicated individuals, we'd have no chance at all of protecting ourselves from our own self-destruction . . .

Valley Women's Club upholds hardworking tradition

You know you're dealing with a group committed to good causes when, in response to the question, "What is the wildest thing y'all have ever done?" they respond, "We released wild owls into the wilderness, with the SPCA . . ." The group was the Carmel Valley Women's Club at their annual Fall Tea on September 9th. Held at the lovely Quail Meadows home of Claire Salmonson, the highlight of this meeting was the introduction, by President Janet Keene, of the new board that includes Pam Michels, Lynn Foster and Valerie McKay.

This group raised and donated a record $4,500 last year to local charities. But what makes this club different from many others is the pervasive warmth and friendliness in it that has helped many Valley and other newcomers over the years adjust to a new life. Nancy Gardner, a former resident of Saudi Arabia now living in Carmel Valley, will be showing her appreciation for the club by donating a real Bedouin tent for the club's spring event, "Arabian Nights." Others, like Betty Hites, June Fellows and Maxine Silliman, all of whom are wives of pilots, enjoy the opportunity the club provides to maintain a very special friendship. All in all, a really neat group of women.

FSO trustee Jean MacDonald, new SPCA Executive Director Priscilla Stockner and attorney Fran Farina can't help but smile after seeing the baby sea otter.

■ Serious health spa planned

In conjunction with welcoming back Managing Director Daniel Barduzzi after his stint with Stonepine Resort, the Robles Del Rio Lodge held a reception on September 9th to introduce some of the features of the major remodel the Lodge is about to undertake. And I mean major! For all you fitness procrastinators, the last excuses will disappear with this news: a focal point of the remodeled Lodge will be a new health spa, wellness and rejuvenation center.

Michael Groves, next-door neighbor and the planning consultant hired by the Lodge, attracted quite a bit of attention at the reception with his irresistible golden-haired toddler, Gabriel, and wife Laurie. Joe Korsdemeier was there, too, sharing some good laughs with Linda and Warren Kaufman. Other nearby neighbors checking out the lay of the land, so to speak, included Barbara and Mel Blevens and Tom and Molly O'Neal. A lot of excitement for the upcoming 21st Century . . .

■ Professional Women's Network selects Woman of the Year

Sandra Collingwood was walking on air September 9th. Owner of Collingwood Carpet Care, she had just been chosen Woman of the Year by the Professional Women's Network, thanks to her impressive achievements as a professional and as an individual. After the presentation, members bid on various silent auction items as Sandra caught her breath and thanked well-wishers. What a well-deserved recognition!

■ La Gala Seca a smashing success

There was a truly unusual combination in the crowd that filled a large tent at Laguna Seca September 10. It was a mixture of devoted racing fans eager for any contact with racing champ Bobby Rahal, members of various racing teams relaxing before a heavy weekend, and a dedicated group of women volunteers working hard to squeeze every possible cent out of this fundraising evening. These worker bees were the Soroptimists International of Carmel Bay, who organize this fundraising event every year and donate the proceeds to women's and children's groups. A very special part of this La Gala Seca evening included both a live and silent auction featuring prizes from which fantasies are made, such as laps around the track with Mario Andretti.

Bobby Rahal spent practically the whole evening signing autographs graciously and tirelessly. His wife Debi revealed that they've been house hunting with the hope that once their kids are out of high school back in Columbus, Ohio, they'd fulfill their longstanding dream of moving here. In the meantime, they'll have to be content to simply vacation here as he lives a new life without racing, but busy with hunting sponsors and directing his team.

His racing successor, Max Pappis, was already getting a healthy dose of adulation from guest fans. Laguna Seca General Manager John Stornetta, of course, has been experiencing all this excitement for

A CLIP-AND-SAVE SCHEDULE

Performance Carmel sparkles with talent for its '98 - '99 season

CARMEL'S SUNSET Center has released its 1998-1999 "Performance Carmel" theater schedule that promises eclectic, diverse performers and original acts for its eight o'clock evening productions. The schedule follows:

Saturday, October 10

"The Complete History of America (Abridged)" by the Reduced Shakespeare Company. The same company that presented "The Complete Works of William Shakespeare" brings its talent for brevity to the history of America, condensing it down to roughly two hours.

Saturday, November 7

"Diavolo" — Daredevil dancing in tough, exhilarating physical theater by dancers, gymnasts and actors who collaboratively develop work on and around outrageous, surrealistic sets and structure.

Saturday, January 9

"Altan" — The twin fiddling of Mairead Ni Mhaonaigh and Ciaran Tourish creates the heart of "Altan's" Irish/Scottish sound which also includes Dermot Byrne on accordion, rhythmic accompaniment of Ciaran Curran on bouzouki and Daithi Sproule and Mark Kelly on guitars.

Saturday, February 6

"Talk Up Not Down" by the Watts Prophets Amde Hamilton, Richard Dedeaux and Otis Solomon. Words and music are bittersweet, angry and blue, challenging attitudes on race, class, generational conflict, ecology and personal responsibility — to be rapped and recited.

Saturday, March 13

Perla Batalla, singer and songwriter brings Latin-tinged pop music in eclectic songs she writes, arranges, and performs — from traditional Latin material to bluesy ballads.

Saturday, April 17

"The New Millennium" with Crocker and Planeix, who have been described as a modern Burns and Allen. Social satire skewers contemporary relationships and trends in well-crafted dialogues and hilarious dances that have been described as "sophisticated, wacky and bright."

Saturday, May 15

"Maria the Storm Cloud," by the 33 Fainting Spells choreographers, presents storytelling and haunting dance in evening-length works of athleticism and passion "verging on recklessness."

All performances will be at the Sunset Center Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. Parking will be available free of charge in the north lot — entered from Eighth Avenue — after 7 p.m.

Although single tickets will be for sale at $16 each, subscribers enjoy preferred seating and the best prices. All seven performances, Director's Choice, are available for a subscription price of $95; a choice of five performances at $72 comprise the Sampler Selection; and a $45 Mini-Sampler Selection allows a choice of three. Group rates are also available.

For information call 624-3996.

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

CARMEL'S Frank Licsko was one of three artists to be honored with an Award of Excellence from 721 art works submitted to a juried Monterey Museum of Art all-media show. Licsko's oil on linen painting, "California Roll," depicts a rippling landscape suggesting an earthquake. The award carries with it a check for $500.

Licsko's entry tied with two other artists: Rebecca Dillon of Prunedale for her ceramic "Metamorphosis," and Gretchen Taylor of Monterey for her color photograph, "Get Me to the Church on Time."

The exhibit, which features some works described as "unusual" and "over-the-top" by museum public relations coordinator, Cara Wilson, will run through November 29.

Twelve honorable mentions went to Carmelites Judy Baird, "Little Sur Meets Big Sur"; Thom Cowen, "San Remo Series No. 87"; Tom Huntington, "Malibu House"; Paxton, "The Intoxicated Mountain Goat"; Tony Raggett, "Yellow Boat at Dusk"; and Rob Wilson, "Autobus Segunda Clase." Other honorable mentions went to Susanne Biondo of Del Ray Oaks, Carole de Palma and Daniel Stolpe of Santa Cruz; Mel Edelman and M. B. Rinehart of Pacific Grove; and Andre Johnson of Salinas.

"Some of the art is really unusual," Wilson said. "The artists didn't pull any punches."

The Monterey Museum of Art is at 559 Pacific Street, Monterey. For information, call 372-5477.

years now. Can you believe he started as a young volunteer at the racetrack in 1967?

In the meantime, Lynx Racing Team co-owner Peggy Haas was trying to control her anxiety over leaving her 18-day-old son back at the hotel with a sitter. She has been a very generous benefactor for the Soroptimists over the years and feels it's only natural that a female-owned racing team (her partner in Lynx is Jackie Doty) should support other fellow women's causes.

I cracked up, though, when I saw newlywed Soroptimist Karen Fulton make a huge fuss at having to give up all the money she was earning selling wine vouchers. With a totally indignant look, she told anyone who would listen to her, "I work so hard for this money and she (event money-lady Bernie O'Keefe) just comes and takes it all away!!!" A great fun evening!

■ Grace, beauty & good wine & food At La Playa

La Playa Hotel's Eighth Annual Garden Party on September 13th couldn't have asked for more: perfect weather, mouthwatering food, very tempting and endless wine supply, gorgeous artworks to admire and a crowd that knew it was there to live life to the fullest.

Rosalind Kidder, whose organization, the Forest Theatre Guild, benefited from the proceeds of the event, raved about the wide selection of gourmet delights available there. Kent Worthen from Santa Cruz has missed, so far, only the very first year of this event. Now he simply books a room at La Playa 1 so he can easily "walk into his room at the end." Melodie Taggart and daughter Natalie Grinelli looked like they could have just stepped out of a Renoir painting... and with the garden's setting, it didn't take much imagination.

Carmel classic Patisserie Boissière continues to impress

"TREASURE" MAY be an appropriate noun, but the adjective, "hidden"? In the sense that the obvious is often right under our noses, it fits! We've been enjoying excellent coffee, feathery croissants and pastry at the Patisserie Boissière for many years; first as visitors and now happily as locals. But dinners and lunches somehow never occurred to us — a grave mistake. What a little jewel is Magdy Ibrahim's Mission Street full-service restaurant.

Maize-colored walls, a welcoming fire in the Fleur-de-lis tiled hearth, flattering light suffusing the Provence-inspired room and fine museum reproductions of Pissaro and Sargent, portend a memorable dining experience.

First to the table: cross cut of warm baguette bread served with sweet butter and a ramekin of garlicky tapenade (Provençal olive paste). Close your eyes when the onion soup arrives and you can almost hear the lively chatter of Paris' famed Les Halles market. However, in fairness, the next tables were raving about the chicken vegetable soup.

We always share an order of stuffed mushrooms. These fancy fungi definitely do not come pre-stuffed and are on-the-premises prepared from scratch, filled with Asiago cheese, multi-colored veggie flecks tossed with mushroom bits and a wonderful blend of fresh herbs. Share an order with your first glass of wine.

Sous chefs Garcia, Mario and Alex translate owner Magdy's culinary internationalism splendidly. Half a roast duck comes to the table juicy inside and browned crisp atop an apricot brandy sauce.

A puffed papillote is the carrier for a salmon filet with crowning artichoke hearts and seasonal vegetables in a lemon-basil butter. When the parchment is slashed the released fragrance makes every waiting moment an eternity, until waitpersons Dane and Sam fold back the edges and we "have at it!"

Let's continue our verbal dining. I'm not a huge-meat eater, but the description of the oven-braised lamb shank piqued my "eyes are bigger than my tummy" reflex. The lamb flaked off the bone into a dynamite vegetable and red wine broth; an unusual, but delicious presentation. I would wish for the excess broth in a separate cup or bowl so that my splashing with bread chunks would have been less hazardous to my silk blouse. The liquid is simply too delicious to leave a drop!

Every day there is a pasta special available for lunch or dinner. I have yet to try the Bolognese, but the seafood versions (I tried two on separate occasions) are heavy with chunks of salmon or swordfish and succulent crustaceans or mollusks de jour. The bathing of chive beurre blanc is light and right.

Constant favorites

To judge from the number of diners who order them, two of the standard menu items are constant favorites, the Beef Shepherd's Pie and the Chicken Pot Pie. Both come topped with flavored mashed potatoes, lightly browned and as airy as a croissant crust would be.

Because of its well known morning to noon excellence, we move now to underline the salads and sandwiches. (They are among the many menu items from pastries to hot entrées which can be ordered to take out and enjoy at home.) The sandwiches are served with soup or salad. Although their base contents are familiar, someone in the kitchen does fantastic things with roast beef, turkey, snow crab with shrimp salad and Albacore tuna. In addition there are two vegetarian offerings; Carmel Garden croissant and the Veggieburger. Again it's the baked croissants, brioches, and French baguettes which make these offerings distinct.

Salads number six, and each is notable. Personal preference sends my spouse back to the Roasted Chicken and Spinach with jicama, apples and caramelized walnuts, or the excellent Chicken Caesar. I opt for the Snow Crab and Avocado bolstered by a mound of fresh, crispy vegetables and greens. What better marriage than a big salad with really good bread? Of course! A glass of wine.

A well chosen house wine is offered at $13.75 a bottle ($3.50 a glass) and the compact wine list is a bit like Magdy himself, international and conservative. A good selection of reasonably-priced California and French wines are available by the bottle or by the glass.

Desserts are a joy; rich but airy enough in their execution that one can feel guiltless, almost! The popular Paris Berries adds kiwi fruit to the traditional strawberries for a pretty color contrast. The pâte à choux-based Napoleon layers chocolate mousse, Bavarian cream and sliced bananas... to quote Yul's King of Siam, "Etc., Etc., Etc.!"

Museum shows Big Sur childrens' art about El Niño winter

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

BIG SUR children, under the guidance of professional artists Lygia Chappellet and Erin Gafill, created multi media art to express their feelings about El Niño's effect on their lives. Their efforts are being shown currently during a two-month run at the Monterey Museum of Art entitled "The Broken Road," sponsored by The Doris Fee Fund and KUSP and Searle's Framing Shop.

The "Escuela del Niño" project includes words and images produced by the children in response to the winter storms of 1998. With schools closed, the highway broken in 17 places, and no storm end in sight, Chappellet and Gafill organized classes to keep children engaged during their hiatus from study.

"By taking these works off the refrigerator and hanging them in a museum, the emotional response caused by the storm's awesome power is revealed," Gafill said.

An artists reception and Ice Cream Social will be held Friday, October 2 from 4 to 5 p.m., including a walk in the Buck Education Gallery with Chappellet and Gafill.

Second phase commenced

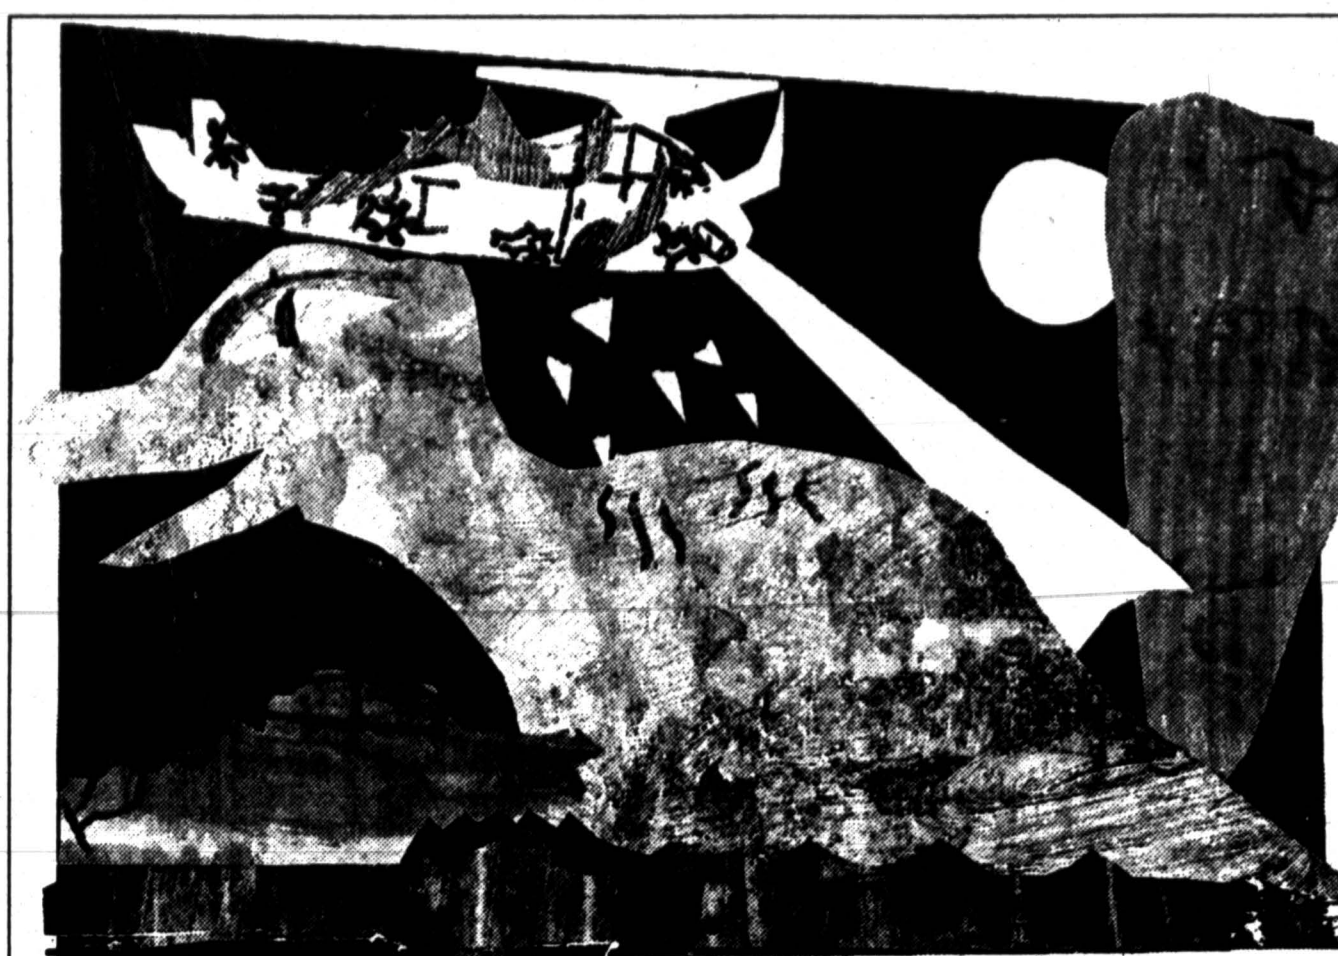

A second phase of the project has commenced with the two artists developing an arts, music and natural science curriculum designed to serve the Children of Big Sur from Hurricane Point to Pacific Valley. Working under the sponsorship of Captain Cooper Parent Club, Escuela del Niño is a candidate for support by The Turner Community Youth Development Initiative, and has been endorsed by the Carmel Unified School District.

For information about Escuela del Niño, contact Erin Gafill at 667-2454 or Lygia Chappellet at 667-0109. For information about the art show, contact the Monterey Museum of Art Education Department at 373-2061.

✓ CV church plans Harvest Fall Festival

OUR LADY of Mount Carmel Catholic Church presents its fourth annual Harvest Fall Festival from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20. Setting is the church grounds at 9 El Caminito in Carmel Valley Village.

The events features a tri-tip barbecue, rummage sale, raffle, silent auction, kids' games, crafts, live music and more.

Robbie Jardine was a fifth grader when he created this acrylic collage that depicts his feelings about El Niño's destructive power — which he envisioned as a monster.

ANTONY . . .

the original tale, Michael Jacobs as Antony's chief follower, Enobarbus, becomes both character and narrative poet. Jacobs' brilliant soliloquies are essential to the play's essence and substance.

It is notable that Shakespeare's original play had a cast of 34, plus soldiers, officers, messengers and attendants, while this production, with a cast of only seven, maintains all the elements vital to the story.

The supporting cast, all of whom deserve kudos, features Meghan Marx as the beautiful Octavia, Paul Jennings as the much abused Thidius, Julian Framstad as the no-nonsense Octavius, and Stephanie Whigham as Cleopatra's constant attendant and advisor, Charmian.

Technically, the presentation of "Antony and Cleopatra" is outstanding, with a breathtaking stage setting by John Brady and his crew, brilliant lighting by Steve Judge, and exquisite costuming.

Go on! Let "Antony and Cleopatra" cast their spell on you.

CV Ranch presents Sista Monica and Sovoso

CARMEL VALLEY Ranch presents an outdoor afternoon of music and feasting from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20. Bring a blanket for the lawn to better enjoy the music, as well as cuisine and beverages prepared by Chef Steven Schultz. Tickets are $20 in advance or $25 the day of the event. Cost for children is $15; children under 4 admitted free. The ranch is located at One Old Ranch Road, six miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road to Robinson Canyon Road. Call 998-2277.

VILLAGE VERSE

AS MAGIC AS

*In our search for warmth
We trample thick blankets
And thin their nap into nothing.
Until dusk we shun the sun
And then cry for its blaze,
Shivering in dark until day
Lets us renew

*No rules confine us. We err
With natural haphazardness,
Choosing silk over lamb's wool
And chattering in fashion.
Our style is chic,
Our search for homely warmth
As magic, as eternal
As each one's magic madness.*

"Carmel Legends"

No. 16

This week we'd like to tell you a bit about a current Carmel Legend...the man who writes this page each week. We can do this as he is away on vacation and he can not enforce his anonymity. AL SMITH is a retired advertising executive who fled San Francisco for the comforts of Carmel Point some years back. He now exercises his considerable talents by writing these weekly vignettes about Carmel's character's and events. He got started in his studies of Carmel when he accepted our challenge ten years ago or so to write a "Real Estate Guide to Carmel" for our clients. Al enjoys Carmel, we enjoy his writings, we hope you do too! We know people are reading this column as one of our local friends stopped us on the sidewalk to tell us she enjoyed our ads and congratulated us on... "compounding more mis-information about Carmel"...than any other source in town! Pretty high praise, we thought!

Historic Pebble Beach mansion

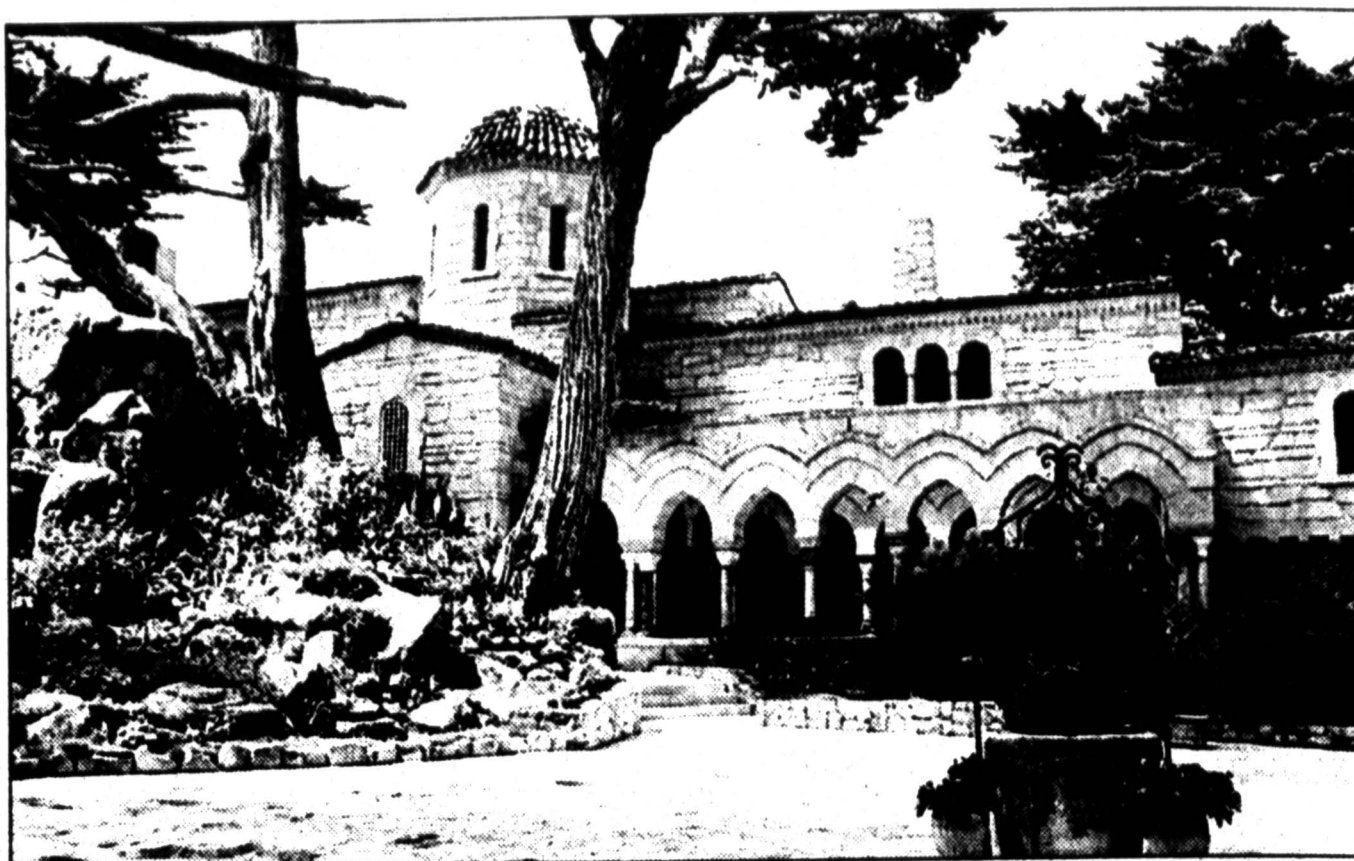

■ From Saudi Arabian to So. Californian

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE MOST expensive home ever sold in Monterey County closed escrow August 26.

The Crocker mansion on 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach was sold by a Saudi Arabian businessman to the Pescadero Point Trust of Southern California for $13,250,000, according to the Monterey County Recorder's office.

Mike Canning of Goldwell Banker Del

The Crocker mansion has been called the "sole representative of the Byzantine style in America." The cortiere at the front of the house has 45 pillars of 32 different types of marble. The guest quarters are only 100 feet above the boulders of Pescadero Point in Pebble Beach.

Monte was both the listing and selling agent on the transaction, which was originally listed at $25 million and recently reduced to $19.9 million.

According to Mark Hiroshima of the recorder's office, the previous high-ticket property was the Leonard Firestone home — also on 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach — which sold in 1993 for $11.5 million.

The historic Crocker home — a 17-room stone castle familiar to everyone who's taken the scenic drive through Pebble Beach — was built in the 1930s by Mrs. Helene Irwin Crocker, one of the wealthiest women in America. Her husband, Templeton, a

Tickets for next year's AT&T available

JUST A MONTH after the long-delayed finish of the 1998 tournament, tickets to the 1999 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am are now on sale.

The world-famous tournament is scheduled for Feb. 1 through 7 at Spyglass Hill, Poppy Hills and the Pebble Beach Golf Links.

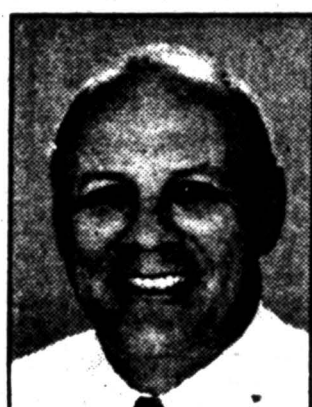

The purse for the tournament has been increased this year to $2.8 million, with a first prize of $504,000.

August 17, Phil Mickelson picked up the $450,000 first-place money for the 1998 tournament by shooting an impressive 67 on the final round. He'll be back in less than five months to defend his title.

Daily tickets for the 1999 tournament will be $30 for the tournament rounds and $20 for the practice rounds. Season badges are available for $80 until Dec. 15 and $95 after.

Net proceeds from the event go to hundreds of local charities descendant of railroad magnate Charles Crocker, did not live to see the home finished, according to historian Elena Lagorio.

The grand building's architect was George Washington Smith, who designed fortress-like walls of concrete two feet thick, all faced with stone brought from Mount Vesuvius. Its style is "neo-Byzantine," and Canning says it is the sole representative of the Byzantine style in America. The foyer floor is covered with a remarkable stone mosaic depicting the signs of the Zodiac and the four districts of the Byzantine Empire, bordered by a 45-columned cortiere with 32 different types of marble. The initial post on the stair balustrade is carved from the largest piece of red agate in the United States.

Heated beach

One of the previous owners, George Hart, installed a "radiant heated beach" for the home in the 1940's. Plastic zipper inventor Noel Poux paid $250,000 for the home in 1955. The WWII veteran decorated it with medieval armor hung on the walls, French and American rifles stacked in the corners and even a couple of antique machine guns. Those artifacts are long gone.

A local who was able to tour the house when it was on the market this year described one of the bathrooms as having a solid chunk of onyx hollowed out to form the bathtub, with incredible fish-scale walls and arches made from thousands of polished abalone shell rounds. He added that the new owners may want to rethink the lime shag carpeting in parts of the house.

The mansion boasts six bedroom suites, three separate caretaker apartments and guest quarters off the oceanside terrace only 100 vertical feet above the boulders of Pescadero Point. The fireplace mantel in the cavernous dining room is a 16th-century Renaissance carved stone frieze of the 12 Apostles, each standing below a Gothic style arch.

The $13.25 million price tag was described as a steal. "You couldn't build it for that, no way," said a local real estate expert.

Canning reports that the new owners intend to renovate the portions of the house that have been remodeled, to return it to its original glory.

"The seller modernized several bathrooms and the kitchen, taking out or building over some incredible marble mosaic floors and solid marble sinks — fabulous authentic pieces," said Canning. "The buyer plans to restore the original details."

The interior designer who did the remodeling in the 1980s, Arthur J. Moeller, was quoted at the time as saying that the original work was meticulously preserved and stored, "in the event someone wishes to put it back to the original."

Pebble Beach Co. pours $1.6 million to stabilize bluffs

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

EARLY MORNING walkers on the North end of Carmel Beach last week were startled to see large equipment at work on bluffs below the 9th and 10th greens of the Pebble Beach Golf Links.

A $1.6 million "coastal stabilization" project is under way by the Pebble Beach Company, according to Steve Aitchison, vice president of capital services, and Tom McMillan, project manager.

Heavy winter storms of recent years raised fears that the world-famous golf course might suffer serious erosion that could threaten some of the fairways.

"We're doing stabilization work, as we did on the 17th green and 18th tee, fairway and green last year," Aitchison told The Pine Cone. "It's an extensive project that will be finished about November 13."

A series of walls will be incorporated into the bluff, with the lower wall wrapping each of the areas of the two greens. "The walls will be faced with an artificial rock surface blending with the sandstone outcroppings," he said. "Above that there will be a natural timber-style wall with vegetation growing over it."

According to Aitchison, Cemrock Landscape, a company that specializes in artificial rock formations, will use different surface detailing on the current project than the artificial rock used on the lower portion of the 18th tee stabilization.

Rebar spacers with netting are sprayed with a concrete artificial rock formation below the Pebble Beach golf links at the northern end of Carmel Beach. The project to stabilize these bluffs is expected to cost $1.6 million.

"The work we're doing now will be more natural and it will be earth covered," he said.

The road from the greens leading down to the beach — which was created to bring in heavy equipment just for this project — will be "back-filled and rejuvenated to look as it did before," McMillan said.

were taken. Items consisted of a gold locket, valuable rings, jade and some loose diamonds. Case continues.

Carmel area: Telecart requested a welfare check on a Mesa Place resident. Subject had not responded to their phone calls. Entry gained to the home; nobody was home.

Carmel area: White male juvenile reported his car "keyed" at Carmel High School. Another student was cited for malicious mischief.

Carmel Area: Individual reported that a juvenile male had skateboarded past a video store at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. He believed the juvenile was one of the group of kids causing problems in the area. The juvenile was gone upon arrival.

Carmel Valley: Individual reported leaving her purse on a shopping cart outside the Safeway at Mid Valley. The purse was recovered at a Burger King in Seaside absent the money and credit cards. Stops placed on all credit cards and checks.

Pebble Beach: Individual reported his two children observed a man making lewd gestures at the intersection of Whaler's Way and Valdez, while they were walking home from school.

Carmel Valley: Man reported his "Troy Built" brand rototiller missing from his barn. Reporting party believes the rototiller was taken around 8/23/98.

Carmel Valley: Del Fino Place resident reported that a woman who evicted him continues to harass him about cleaning up the rental, now at the business he owns and operates.

Big Sur: Individual reported he saw a subject climb over the fence to ranch property across from Palo Colorado, where he was not supposed to be.

Carmel area: Individual requested a welfare check on a Dolores Street residence. Resident contacted, who said she had lived at that address since June of this year. Reporting party was contacted and advised that his friend had moved.

ject to come to work. Reporting party was not there upon arrival prior to the requested time. The infirmed older woman the reporting party was supposed to watch was left unattended until officer contacted the subject to come to the house.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 11

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a broken window at home on San Carlos. It appeared to have been accidental.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of loud customers at restaurant on Mission. Reporting party canceled complaint prior to officer's arrival.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Complaint of man yelling at passing cars on Junipero. Check revealed that the man, 40, had an outstanding warrant from Orange County. He was arrested.

Carmel Valley: Responded to a 911 hang-up call from a Los Arboles residence. Found three children, ages 5, 7 and 8 years old alone at home. The mother of one of the children phoned the house while the deputies were there. She said she was shopping for a jar of mayonnaise in Pacific Grove. She was told to return home and care for the children.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 12

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Complaint of a loud party in street

Roof fire at inn being investigated

By TAMARA GRIPPI

THE CARMEL Fire Dept. quickly put out a fire that erupted on the roof of the Adobe Inn on Dolores and 8th Sept. 16.

Guests at the inn said they saw billows of smoke and then flames on the roof at 3:57 p.m. While one witness called the fire department, others used a fire extinguisher to quiet the flames.

The Carmel Fire Department arrived on the scene within one minute of the call and used hoses to douse the fire. Fire fighters from the Rio Road station also responded to the call.

The blaze was most likely started by some burning material falling on the roof and setting the cedar shingles on fire, said Carmel Fire Chief Bill Hill.

"It was burning the shakes pretty well and putting up a lot of smoke," Hill said. "On a breezy day like this, it can cause trouble pretty quickly."

The inn's rooms in the area of the roof fire were all empty at the time the blaze broke out, according to Hill. In addition, there were no fires in the rooms at the inn that day.

The fire dept. is conducting an investigation to determine what started the fire.

against her right to put them up on her fence. Okay, maybe the chair in the road with a sign on it was too much. But as a mother with a "Drive Slow" sign on my tree in Mid-Valley, I know exactly where she's coming from. I, too, watched cars fly by my house, even though the posted speed limit on my street is 25 mph. I, too, worried about my child and his playmates' safety.

Ms. Field can't be outside watching her children every minute, just as I couldn't. In my opinion, she has the right to warn drivers to slow down more than she has seen them do, and that the five "big hitters" struck out, big time.

Anne Greene, Carmel Valley

Improvements would alleviate traffic

Dear Editor:

Peter St. Andrews (letters, Sept. 4) decries the "hysterics" who oppose the Hatton Canyon freeway. I live on the south bank of the Carmel River, have riparian rights to the water he drinks, bathes in, and uses greens his Pebble Beach property. I also drive Carmel Valley Road every day.

Traffic congestion at Highway 1, Rio Road, and Carmel Valley Road is a nuisance at best and an aggravation at worst, which authorized road improvements would alleviate if Caltrans were acting in the public interest. Can he seriously suggest that the "Scenic Highway" is an "infrastructure improvement" that will benefit the community? Word play does not solve issues.

Joseph DuCoeur, Carmel Valley

Clean-up's many benefits

Dear Editor:

I want to urge everyone to hit the beach Sept. 19 for the annual coastal clean-up — a day which has significance far beyond the pristine beaches left behind at day's end.

Because everything that is picked up is counted, a vast database of what-washes-up-where is being accumulated. This information is used to help fight coastal pollution by tracking down sources, developing new biodegradable materials, etc.

Personally, I'll be at Monterey Beach, where Supervisor Dave Potter is captain of the clean-up. But dozens of other local beaches are involved. See you there!
